1990 Year-End DHIA Reports Are In This Issue

Two Holstein Herds Lead State In Milk, Milk Component Production

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

STATE COLLEGE (Lancaster Co.) — Two Holstein herds split official honors for having the highest rolling average for milk, protein and milkfat production in 1990, according to data released Wednesday by the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association (Pa.DHIA).

A York County herd of registered Holsteins, owned by Rodney Smyser, showed both the highest milk production and milk protein production in the state. The end-of-the-year test averages on the 75.4-head milking herd showed 27,629 pounds of milk and 860 pounds of protein produced by each cow.

An Indiana County herd with an average number of 80.1 milking animals was first in the state in milkfat production and second to Smyser's herd in milk and protein production.

The grade and registered Holstein herd, owned by Milos and Sandy Sinan, showed an average 1,009 pounds of fat produced during the past test year, which ended September. The herd's second-place finish was with an average 26,458 pounds of milk and 810 pounds of protein.

Although both farms have led their respective county in production of milk, milkfat and milk protein for the past two years, it is evident from records that there have been some significant changes made within the last three years at each operation; especially for the WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — If ag sciences don't receive financial support, farmers "ultimately will be the losers," said Dr. Stanley Evan Curtis, head of Penn State's College of Agriculture dairy and animal science department.

Curtis spoke to about 400 Pennsylvania Grangers at the state banquet Tuesday night. His topic, "Science In Times of Plenty," outlined the importance of agricultural science to farmers and how the public sometimes misunderstands this importance.

"Agriculture has succeeded beyond anyone's wildest expectations," Curtis said, emphasizing that in the U.S., the average person spends only about 14 percent of total income on food. In Japan, the average person spends about 21 percent and, in Russia, about 41 percent of total income on food.

"Application of scientifically derived principles has made this possible," he said. "And the American people, even many of us in agriculture, have taken it all for granted. In times of plenty, it turns out, it's easy to take food for granted. And also in times of plenty, it's easy to take agricultural science for granted."

Decisions made

According to Curtis, many of the decisions about farming are

Pa. Cows Go To Make Milk In Middle East

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.

WEST FALLOWFIELD (Chester Co.) — U.S. military forces in Saudi Arabia should be getting fresh milk within the next six months, according to William Nichol, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

Sunday, 531 bred heifers from Pennsylvania are to be loaded on a ship docked at port in Wilmington, Del., and taken on a 15-week cruise to Egypt. They are to form the nucleus of a milking herd already contracted with the U.S. government to supply fresh milk to military forces currently serving in the Middle East because of the Iraqi crisis.

While attending the annual meeting of the Chester County Holstein Association, held Thursday in West Fallowfield, Nichol told the group about the export

Funks Honored At Home After National Award This Week

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.)—The 50th anniversary celebration of the Lancaster County Conservation District turned into a "this is your life" appreciation for Amos Funk, affectionately known as the grandfather of conservation for his 40 years as a local director. It was all planned, of course, unknown to Amos and his wife Esta, who shared the spotlight. They were just back from receiving the Benjaman Franklin Conservation Award presented by President George Bush at the White House in Washington, DC.

Funk said that from the beginning the district was involved in problem-solving, idea sharing and volunteerism. For the first years the district was run on $167 and the interest from $2,000 in a government savings bond. The 79-year-old conservationist said we look back with a sense of pride, and we are optimistic for the future.

Master of Ceremonies, Mel Davis, former administrator, U.S. Soil Conservation Service, presented a pin to Funk from his friends in the district to recognize his 40 years as director of the local district. Robert Brenneman, county commissioner, presented a letter of commendation to Aaron Stauffer, chairman of the district. "It

Robert Casey And Barbara Hafer Answer Farm Questions

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

Many issues that face farmers have their roots in Harrisburg's political atmosphere that will be created during the election November 6. To help farmers compare the farm positions of both Robert Casey, Democratic governor who seeks re-election, and Barbara Hafer, Republican challenger who is the current attorney general, a personal interview with each candidate was conducted by Everett Newswanger, Lancaster Farming managing editor. The interview with Gov. Casey took place in the governor's office in the Capitol building while the interview with Attorney General Barbara Hafer occurred in the Republican headquarters on State Street. Here are the questions and the candidates' answers.

AGRICULTURE RATED

Question: Farmers face decreased representation in government because their population numbers continue to decrease even though 20 percent of the jobs in Pennsylvania are dependent on the production and buying power of agriculture. On a scale of one to ten, with ten the highest priority, how do you rate the importance of agriculture in Pennsylvania?

New York And Philadelphia Frozen Egg Report

Tuesday, October 23, 1990

Trading activity was spotty under a cautious and unsettled trade sentiment. Yolks and whole eggs were in the best position with whites often noted as difficult to move. Schedules were often adjusted to avoid building inventories. Current floor stocks were usually sufficient to cover trade requirements.

Refrigerated Eggs

FDA recently placed shell eggs on the potentially hazardous food list, thereby requiring mandatory refrigeration. Specifically, shell eggs in a food establishment (food processors, warehouses, distributors and retail food stores) must have an internal temperature of 45 degrees F or below until sold or used.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has notified everyone concerned that state egg and food inspectors will be enforcing the requirement beginning on January 1, 1991. This gives the egg industry and its customers several months to make any necessary adjustments.

According to the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, FDA's action negates the need for the mandatory refrigeration legislation now in the Pennsylvania General Assembly. A number of scientists believe that proper refrigeration of eggs will significantly reduce the number of human outbreaks of Salmonella Enteritidis associated with eggs.

Certainly to keep eggs cold from farm to consumer should give a positive message to the public that producers and distributors are willing to share the responsibility to get the edible egg to the family table in perfect condition. But the consumer, private or commercial, should also learn how to prepare food, especially how to cook food properly. If eggs are properly refrigerated and properly cooked, they provide one of natures most nutritious, inexpensive foods.

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Prevent Pneumonia

As temperature and weather conditions vary considerably from day to day and from hour to hour, precautions need to be taken to prevent pneumonia. Pneumonia causing organisms are normally present in the respiratory tract, but under periods of stress an animal's resistance can be lowered to the point where it can no longer fight off the infection. So, it's important to minimize stress on animals. Keep barns well ventilated, but avoid cold drafts. This may require frequent adjustment of doors and windows, or the proper installation and use of fans. Good ventilation prevents the buildup of stagnant, moist germ-laden air. That's important. Also avoid overcrowding. During inclement and rapidly changing weather conditions, one should also minimize stresses associated with transporting animals, weaning, changing feeds, deworming, vaccinating, etc. When necessary, consult your veterinarian for advice on immunization and treatment.

To Observe Weed Populations

Now that most of the corn is harvested, we can plainly see what weeds failed to be controlled in those fields. We are seeing more of the persistent, hard-to-control weeds appearing in our crop fields during the past 8-10 years. In part, this is because we have changed our farming methods, particularly tillage techniques and we're not using crop rotations in the case of continuous corn.

Bindweeds, horsenettle, hemp dogbane, curly dock, Canada thistle, Johnsongrass, and yes, even woody plants such as brambles and small volunteer trees have appeared in increasing numbers. We need to note the presence of these weeds now and then prepare to deal with them.

When you notice a new weed, have it identified and take appropriate control measures before the weed becomes a menancing problem. If weeds are presently escaping from your control efforts, find out how to change your weed management program.

To Hunt Safely

The small game hunting season for rabbits and pheasants opened on Saturday, October 27. We need to remind ourselves to be courteous and considerate while hunting on farms. We encourage all hunters to practice good relations between farmers and hunters. Criticism of hunting often starts because a few hunters forget the landowner is his host. By observing a few sensible hunting manners, hunters will keep themselves from becoming uninvited guests.

Most landowners permit reasonable hunting. Asking permission to hunt is a small courtesy in return for a pleasant day in the field; yet too few people follow this rule. Landowners may actually need protection from indifferent, careless and destructive hunters. When the trouble starts, many farmers post their land for protection from irresponsible hunters.

It takes very little time and costs nothing to observe a few common courtesy rules while hunting: ask permission before hunting, close gates, pick-up litter after eating lunch and stay out of unharvested crops. Keep a safe distance from buildings and livestock while hunting and be sure to respect the property of others as you would expect others to respect yours.

For Farm Show Entries

January, and Pennsylvania Farm Show time, seems like a long time away. But, really it is not, because now is the time to be making your livestock and dairy entries for the Pennsylvania Farm Show. This should be a banner year for the Farm Show since it's the 75th Anniversary year.

Just a reminder that November 1 is the deadline for these entries — and that is close at hand.

So, if you are interersted in exhibiting at Farm Show, you can obtain entry blanks and a premium book from your County Extension Office. The Farm Show runs from January 6 through 11, 1991.

Farm Forum

Editor:

I note that Gov. Casey will be in Lancaster for the groundbreaking for a new 1½ mile section of Rt. 23 from Lancaster east to Rt. 30. While that decision has been made, the more important question is whether Rt. 23 will be built as a new four-lane expressway through New Holland.

It was announced in August that PennDOT would conduct an environmental and cultural study to decide whether or not the highway should be constructed. As planned, the new highway would cut through some of the county's best farmland as well as Plain Sect communities, historic buildings and achaeological sites.

However, some people think the decision has already been made. State Transportation Secretary Howard Yerusalim has stated he would like to see the highway built. The Lancaster County Planning Commission wants the expressway built all the way to Morgantown. I purchased a map of Lancaster County from the American Automobile Association that shows the highway already in existence past New Holland.

Hopefully, the $742,000 study

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

SPREADING IT BEFORE THE LORD
October 28, 1990

Background Scripture:
2 Kings 19:8-22, 32-34.
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 40:1-11.

One of the issues with which I have wrestled throughout my life as a Christian is that of the will of God. Time and again I have come back to this problem, only to have to work it through again at some later time. All my answers to this question are always temporary and tentative.

Frequently when I pray, I am aware that if God were to affirmatively answer my prayer, he might have to deny the prayer request of someone else. How does that work, I have wondered? When two prayer requests conflict, does he bestow his blessing on the one whom he likes the best? No, of course not. Is it a matter of who gets his prayer request in first? No, not that either. Or is it a matter of knowing the right way to pray for one, while the other belongs to a religious group that is not as well-informed? No, that is unthinkable! So how does it work?

"MY OWN SAKE"

Perhaps this story from 2 Kings suggests a working — though not final — answer. God says through Isaiah: "For I will defend this city to save it, for my own sake and for the sake of David my servant" (19:34). God gives an affirmative answer to Hezekiah's prayer, because it meets his own purposes: to maintain his integrity before the nations and to fulfill his promise to David. One might also conclude that if Hezekiah's prayer had run contrary to God's purpose, God's response would have been different.

Was it not in this same vein that Jesus would pray many years later: "Father, if thou art willing, remove this cup from me; nevertheless, not my will, but thine, be done" (Luke 22:42). Thus, we petition God for two reasons: (1) to share with him our hopes, desires and concerns, and (2) to align our lives to his will. When our hopes, desires and concerns coincide with his will, the answer to our prayer may come as it did to Hezekiah. But when it doesn't — and there are many instances of this in the Bible, too — the answer we get to our prayer is no less an answer, even though it is not what we hoped it would be. At that time we have to trust God and leave it in his hands.

OPEN THY EYES

Hezekiah is one of the few Jewish kings about which the Old Testament has something good to say. One reason is obvious: he was a man of faith who prayed. When he received the threatening letter, he "went up to the house of the Lord, and spread it before the Lord" (19:14). You and I today have the same recourse: whatever comes to us in our daily walk — pain, fear, injustice, joy, love, or victory — we need to spread it before the Lord and pray.

DOEBLER'S ALFALFAS

A step ahead on crop protection

by Bill Camerer

"What's Aphanomyces?"

We hear that question a lot since introducing Doebler's Precedent, one of the very few alfalfas resistant to this new disease.

Aphanomyces won its name as the scourge of Midwest pea crops. Recently it spun off a strain that attacks alfalfa.

Water-logged seedings are hit the hardest. If you seeded a Phytolphthora-resistant alfalfa this past spring and still found a lot of root rot, this new fungus could be the culprit.

Hard winters and other diseases can be equally devastating. Here's how Doebler's alfalfas protect your crop:

SEVEN-WAY PROTECTION

| | Precedent | Starmaster |
|---|---|---|
| Winter hardiness | Very good | Excellent |
| Bacterial Wilt | Highly Resistant | Resistant |
| Verticillium Wilt | Highly Resistant | Resistant |
| Anthracnose | Resistant | Moderately Resistant |
| Fusarium Wilt | Resistant | Resistant |
| Phytophthora RR | Highly Resistant | Highly Resistant |
| Aphanomyces | Resistant | ---------- |

Disease resistance gives you longer stands and 10 to 15% higher yields in later years, extension agents say. We feel our new Precedent and Starmaster do even better. And Eastern alfalfa trials confirm it.

Fall Harvest Is Here, Bountiful and Available

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The past spring and summer has offered a cornucopia of garden produce to Pennsylvania residents and a brisk and healthy business to both roadside markets and sellers at auction houses.

Asparagus, sugar peas, sweet corn, tomatotes and potatoes, lettuce, cabbage, cucumbers, red and green bell peppers, hot peppers ... the plethora of locally-raised fresh produce has been flowing in a seemingly endless stream from truck patch to table.

According to Virginia McGowan, roadside market hot line specialist for the state Department of Agriculture (PDA), the supply of state-grown fruits and vegetables has been very good and prices steady. "It was a very good year." she said.

For most of the summer, a continuous report of the condition and price of state-raised fruits and vegetables has been available through the state's roadside market program.

The program is a weekly report available to those with a home computer (through the Penn State University computer service Penn Pages), and it is also available via telephone on a pre-recorded service line, courtesy of the state agriculture department.

For many years, the hotline has continued to be a popular service. McGowan reports that the program is widely used by producers, retailers and consumers throughout the state to gauge current price ranges on Pennsylvania-grown fruits and vegetables.

According to hotline reports, crops have increased in abundance, diversity and availability for some time. Even with the wanning growing season, the number of items at roadside stands is great.

"At times the quanities (of items) get low, but I can't imagine anything being absent due to weather or a poor growing season," McGowan said.

The recent Indian summer weather may have contributed to the extended season on some vegetables.

"The list (reported on the roadside hotline) is still as big as ever. The apples are expanding, other items that have been available still seem to continue. We still have (sweet) corn. You would think that season is over," McGowan said.

However, the availability of the summer crops, such as fresh vine-ripened tomatoes, will not continue for long.

Last Saturday, a heavy frost hit many parts of the state, sending the first killing shock through regions with fields of temperature-sensitive plants.

More frost is expected this weekend.

Some in the fruit and vegetable business, such as Neil Courtney, manager of Buffalo Produce auction in Mifflinburg, say they suspect the last offerings of the summer vegetables are likely to be seen very soon, if not this coming week.

"Saturday morning in Buffalo came the first killing frost," Courtney said. "The tomato crop could be over this weekend because of forecasted frosts."

However, for Buffalo Produce — and the suppliers and buyers who use the facility — the end of the growing season will close a year of good business, according to Courtney.

"Every item of produce this summer was in good supply. Quality varied though due to wet weather conditions," Courtney said.

"In general terms, prices have followed supply," he said.

At Buffalo, which has been in operation for the past four years, business has picked up.

"We increased growers by about 140 this year," Courtney said. "I

Answer Farm Questions

Gov. Casey: Our economic development policy over the past four years has involved ag in a very direct way. We have two agricultural representatives on our economic development partnership. And two of the major initiatives on the economic partnership have been related to agriculture and the rural area. One is food processing that directly affects the agricultural community. It's one of the pillars of our economy; the other is hardwoods production.

In addition, we have put over $50 million in the development of Pennsylvania agriculture through PEDA, the capital loan fund; BEDFA Benjamin Franklin Partnership; The Agricultural Entrepreneurial Development Fund; new to our adminstration, The PennAg Fund; The Farm Market Loan Fund; and the Family Farm Loan Development Fund.

Having said that, I don't know if you can assign a numerical ranking to one vs. another. All these industries in Pennsylvania are interdependent economically. But I just want to say, Agriculture has been a key to everything we have done here by way of job creation, economic activity, and market research. One of the first things I did when I came in this door, in my first budget, was to add $5 million to the ag extension service at Penn State to make sure all the research information and other activities gets to the farmer. I don't know if that was ever done before in that kind of massive amount of money.

Atty. Gen. Hafer: Agriculture is our number one industry, generating $38 billion a year in Pennsylvania. It helps keep hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvania men and women in jobs from Philadelphia to Erie, tens of thousands of jobs in the cities and more in the rural areas. Agriculture has a ripple effect on the economy from banks to the retail level. Agriculture deserves the full attention and the support of our next governor.

FARMLAND PRESERVATION

Question: Pennsylvania's program of farmland preservation through conservation easements was created under the Casey Adminstration. Some critics claim the program got off to a slow start. Are you satisfied with the farmland preservation program so far?

Gov. Casey: We are very proud of the farmland preservation program. We have received a national award and have $100 million committed to it, as you know. It's now being looked at as a model for other states. In a letter from the director of the American Farmland Trust, he points out that far from being slow on getting underway, as some people have contended, Pennsylvania's program (quoting) is functioning far sooner than any of the several earlier state programs. So we are off to a good start.

Atty. Gen. Hafer: The program is still moving too slowly. Casey moved slowly in implementing it, and failed to meet deadlines for regulations. A very important vacancy was left for months. While now moving, its time to take further action to get counties involved, and work with them to adopt the necessary programs to take full advantage of the available funding.

PROFITABLE FARMING

Question: One of the points often made related to farmland preservation is that if we make farming profitable, we will automatically preserve the farmer and his farm. Can you give any suggestions how the person in the governor's office can help make farming more profitable?

Gov. Casey: Obviously, profit comes from reduced costs and increased revenues, or a combination of both. In looking at the cost side, we have not raised taxes, which helps everyone, including the farm community. We have increased money for ag research. The 5 million for the extension service has certainly helped on the cost side of the ledger. We have encouraged integrated pest management to reduce the cost of pesticides, and we have encouraged the use of less expensive newsprint for bedding, which is widely used, as you know. And we have provided financial assistance for the adoption of new technology.

On the other side of the ledger, to increase demand and price, we have opened new markets, worldwide, with our aggressive ag exports program. And ag exprots are up 61 percent since 1986, which I think is something that should be mentioned. Second, we have given the power of promotion back to the producers through Act 1, called Act 1 because it was the first act I signed after I got here. It was a delivery of a campaign promise to take it away from the bureaucrats and give it back to the farmer. And that's been done.

Next, we have increased state spending on ag promotion by about 51 percent. We have tripled the number of economic financing programs available to Pennsylvania farmers through the Department of Agriculture and the economic partnership. In all these ways we have done our best to reduce costs and increase markets and price for products, thereby contributing somewhat to the farmer's profit.

Atty. Gen. Hafer: The governor can help make farming more profitable by standing shoulder to shoulder with farmers to help the market their products, and by not letting DER stand on farmers' shoulders. The governor can help by relieving the unfair tax burdens on farmers created by Casey's spending programs. In addition, the funding necessary for agricultural research and new product development should be provided. By taking a more agressive role in promoting and marketing Pennsylvania farm products, the state can provide funds for this effort. By making agriculture a major part of the overall effort to improve the Pennsylvania economy we can rebuild the economic development in agriculture.

WETLANDS

Question: The importance of preserving wetlands is widely recognized. But the impact of the various interpertations of what constitutes wetlands often unfairly burdens landowners and abuses private property rights. What are your views on the wetland issue and how do you support farmers who may lose tillable land to save wetlands?

Gov. Casey: This a relatively new issue in terms of the regulatory laws of the Commonwealth. As you know, DER has proposed strong wetlands regulation. I know the concern that's out there in the farming community about loss of tillable land. The problem with compensation, as we see it, is that it would be prohibitably expensive and would hamstring DER efforts to protect the wetlands. At the same time, the regulations are being revised according to public comment, and it is my understanding that many of the concerns of the ag community are being addressed as part of that process. Hopefully, out of that process will come some response that will be helpful to the ag community. I want to assure the farm community that all these comments are being considered by us, and the final regulations will not restrict normal farming operations.

Atty. Gen. Hafer: Wetlands are important natural resources just as are farmlands. I support efforts to preserve those important exceptional value wetlands, but I also feel limited value wetlands can be treated less rigidly. A permit waiver should be given for normal farming activities, including aquaculture and silvaculture, with land well-best management practices and county conservation plans are being followed. If a farmers rights to land are taken through the wetland delineation process, that farmer should have recourse to tax credits as compensation for the taking.

Answer Farm Questions

BOTTLE BILL

Question: Many farmers and their organizations advocate a "bottle bill" that would place a deposit charge on beverage containers to motivate consumers to recycle these containers rather than discard them as litter over the countryside. From statistical reports, deposit charges on beverage containers has reduced litter in other states. But in Pennsylvania, some people say, political pressure from special interest groups keep this kind of legislation from passing. Even the proposal to initiate a state referendum on the ballot in November has been stymied in committee. What are your views on the bottle bill concept?

Gov. Casey: I know the litter problem is a separate problem from the recycling problem in many respects. I have to say, though, that particurarly in view of the uncertain impact of the bottle bill on the market, I would like to give the new law at least a year to function to see how it works, to see what markets develop, and then keep an open mind on the referendum issue. We're concerned about developing markets for recyclable products and we are going to need at least a year of experience to really make that judgment. Then at that time we can relook at the issue.

We have been very storng on all aspects of environmental policy. It's been one of the keystones of what we have done. In addition, we have, as you know, a very aggressive program through PennDot right now, where we spend $400,000 in a multi-media campaign urging our citizens to stop littering. And we have the new adopt-a-highway program that has been very successful in recruiting business firms and non-profit groups to help pick up this litter. So, we are very supportive of recycling in small communities, and we are supportive of the anti-litter efforts that are essenstial to protect the farm population from this poliferation of bottles and cans they must deal with. I would like to come back and visit it again in a year when we have some idea how the markets are working out under the new act.

Atty. Gen. Hafer: I support the bottle bill legislation that calls for a 5 cent deposit on any bottle holding less than a gallon. Discarded glass and aluminum bottles and cans are unsafe for animals and machinery. Leadership must be shown from the top down and the governor should insist on bottle bill legislation.

FFA FOUNDATION

Question: During the recent state budget negotiations, funding for the FFA Foundation became quite controversial. The deletion and eventual restoration of these funds in the budget seemed to bring into focus the frustration of the farm community that benefits of the FFA program have been increasingly overlooked in the state's eduational system. How important is the FFA program in the public school system? Why is it or why is it not important?

Gov. Casey: Well, it is important. And the specific enactment that you are referring to, that was a legtislative initiative. The money did finally appear in the budget, through Sam Hays' initiative. We normally do that as part of, in other words, when we start the budget process, all the legislative initiatives for the proceeding year are removed, knowing that they are going to be restored as part of the legislative process. So it wasn't a case of any lack of confidence in that program, or in any way to downgrade the program. It was part of the normal budgetary process, and it was restored through the effort of Representative Hayes.

The broader question is that I know the future farmers program, witnessed and worked with those kids for a long time. We have a group from the Northeast that is very active. It's a good program and I suppport it. I think what we can do, in addition, is to ask the rural education task force that I announced at the rural conference earlier this year, to examine that process for a better way of doing it. And maybe we can, in the future, include it in the budget as a line item in the ag budget. I don't know how Sam Hayes would feel about it, but I would be open to it.

Atty. Gen. Hafer: The FFA program and vocational agriculture as a whole is critical to the future of Pennsylvania agriculture. Agriculture education must be expanded and advanced to help meet world trends and to provide the support and leadership necessary for our youth. Casey cut funding for the FFA Foundation and vocational agriculture in his budget. But the Republicans put the funding back in at more appropriate levels. As Governor, I would exert that leadership through funding to the FFA Foundation and through insuring full time staff representation in the education department for a vocational education specialist.

SALMONELLA

Question: The poultry industry in Pennsylvania lives in fear of a disease called Salmonella Enteritidis or "SE." Many people in the industry think the federal task force rules on SE tracebacks are too severe. Despite that, Pennsylvania, which controls interstate shipments of shell eggs, follows the federal rules. These rules put some producers in a position where they may not be able to survive. What is your opinion on the SE crisis and what can be done to make sure the consumer is protected without devastating the poultry industry that constitutes a major positive economic force in the state and provides us with one of nature's most nutritious foods at a very reasonable price?

Gov. Casey: As you know, Secretary Boyd Wolff and Secretary Mark Richards are working closely together on this issue. I certinly recognize that there are many links in the food distribution chain. And it's unfair to isolate the farmer as one link, the only person, to concentrate on for the problem. I don't agree with that. More importantly, the PDA and the agricultural community had a dialogue on this whole issue. They suppported legislation that requires food establishments to be required to refrigerate eggs, for example. In addition, the PDA is funding four research projects on salmonella right now. We have a full-time person in avian health working on this problem. It's important to highlight the need to educate institutional food operators and the public so that safe food handling practices are followed. This is very important to the prevention of SE. We encourage all of these efforts and want to intensify them, because I know it's really a threat, a terrible threat to the entire poultry industry.

Atty. Gen. Hafer: The Pennsylvania poultry industry has supported efforts to get legislation which would mandate refrigeration of eggs at 55 degrees to limit growth of SE bacteria. But the Casey Adminstration will not budge from its 45 degree requirement, a requirement many poultry operations cannot possibly meet. My solution would be threefold: first I support legislation similar to that under consideration that takes steps to insure maximum cleanliness at all stages of egg production and packaging. I believe food wholesalers and retailers must be educated and mandated to do a better job of storing and handling eggs to prevent the growth of SE bacteria. And consumers must be taught how to properly handle, store and prepare eggs and egg products.

SUMMARY POINTS

Question: As a summary of your feelings about agriculture, if you could talk personally to each of Lancaster Farming's 200,000 readers, what would you tell them?

Gov. Casey: First of all, I would remind them I got the PFA Barn Raiser award, of which I am very proud. I would tell them that we kept every promise we made to the ag community in our 1986 campaign about farmland preservation, the animal heath commission, and independence for producer financed and run promotion boards. We have fought side by side with farmers on the tax reform issue.

So that when we look at all the increases in support for agriculture across the board, I think that our interest and the interest of the agricultural community have been identical. We have had a strong relationship, and I would like that to continue.

Atty. Gen. Hafer: The men and women involved in Pennsylvania agriculture are one of our most precious resources. You deserve the respect and support of state government because of the important economic, social and environmental role you play. Agriculture will not be taken for granted in the Hafer adminstration. Elect me and I'll be a full time farmer's advocate in Harrisburg, consulting regularly with your leadership to make the future of Pennsylvania agriculture a future of growth.

Prostaph Update Due

It's been a long time since members and others have had any new information about the ELISA test for Staph. aureus mastitis (known as ProStaph I) that was introduced last January. An update is overdue.

What is ProStaph I? It is a rapid test of a non-sterile milk sample (that is, a DHIA sample) for the presence of the antigen that a dairy cow produces when she is infected with Staph. aureus mastitis.

In theory, the test results should correlate with the presence of Staph. mastitis: a negative meaning no mastitis, a positive meaning infection.

There have been quite a few articles about this test this year in trade literature. If you have followed them, you know that there is considerable debate about what the test results mean.

The original research done at Penn State last year showed that a negative test result was very reliable, but a positive result had about a 50% probability of truly being positive for Staph. aureus mastitis.

More research has been underway at Penn State this year and should be over soon. It is hoped this latest information will reveal more about the reliability of a positive test result.

Differing opinions between researchers in states where research has been done has been a real obstacle to the uniform adoption of this technology across the U.S. Some states are using the ProStaph I analysis quite extensively. Other states have been slower to adopt.

For that reason, DHIA Services, the subsidiary of National DHIA that intriduced the test, will convene mastitis researchers at the National Mastitis Council Annual Meeting next February to discuss their findings. It's hoped that a common discussion will provide a common basis for understanding and a uniform proposal for use of test results.

More information should be available when the latest Penn State research is completed.

IT'S MORE THAN ONE TRACTOR.

Here's one tractor that does more work than a half dozen tractors combined. Put it to work on any kind of farm chore. Plowing. Cultivating. Loading. Mowing. Backhoeing. Hauling. And, like we said, more.

The L3350 has a strong 4-cylinder diesel engine, rated at 32 PTO horsepower. It also has direct injection for good fuel economy and quick starts. Longer intervals between oil changes, too.

A couple of other features make this Kubota tractor a real workhorse. An 8 x 8 partially synchronized transmission for easy shifting. Position and draft control for more accurate implement placement.

So come in and take a look at the Kubota L3350. You'll think you're seeing double.

Only Farm Credit Has Loan Officers Who Were Trained In The Field.

While you were growing up on the farm going to 4-H, FFA, maybe even AG school, do you know what your Farm Credit loan officer was doing?

Same thing.

Not many bankers can say that.

True, they can make loans nine ways to Sunday. But, now your Farm Credit loan officer can, too. Over the last few years our people have gone through extensive training at making every kind of farm loan imaginable. Now a Farm Credit loan officer can give you the lowdown on rates, options and creative financing as well as any city banker can.

And around here, our Farm Credit loan officers have the power of approval that's equal to most bank presidents.'

So the next time you need to get a farm loan, think about this for just a moment.

Then let one of our Farm Credit loan officers prove to you what we've been saying all along.

That bankers can't be farmers.

But farmers can be bankers.

Garden Spot At Forefront Of National Competition

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

Last of a 2-part series

Editor's note: Garden Spot High School in New Holland, Lancaster Co., recently achieved national recognition as eastern region winners of the prestigious FFA Building Our American Communities (BOAC) Award. They were honored for soil conservation work as part of an erosion control project on a portion of the Black Creek in Terre Hill.

Last week, Lancaster Farming introduced the project. This week, we examine what the project will mean for the students and the community.

In addition, Lancaster Farming interviewed the project advisor and former chairperson in accompanying articles.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The clock clicked down to about 1,700 student hours. And now, more than 100 Garden Spot FFA students from the Grassland Chapter await the final moment, when they may be able to claim a huge victory.

That victory would be a first for Garden Spot, contenders for the national Building Our American Communities (BOAC) Award. The award recognizes outstanding FFA conservation projects throughout the U.S.

In early October, two representatives from Garden Spot — Dr. Philip Ogline, Garden Spot agriscience department head and his daughter, Shelly, a junior at the school — took part in the final stages of the award. They presented papers and were interviewed at the National FFA Community Development Conference in Washington for the BOAC Award (of which Robert Lauffer, ag science teacher at Garden Spot, is advisor) and for the Achievement In Volunteerism (AIV) award. (See profiles of Lauffer and Shelly Ogline this issue of Lancaster Farming.)

The BOAC awards will be presented at the National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Missouri, during the second week of November. Garden Spot won the eastern region award and will compete against nine other nominees from Florida, South Dakota, New Mexico, Colorado, North Carolina, Nebraska, Tennessee, Utah, and West Virginia.

Garden Spot FFA students place railroad ties for a cattle crossing at Black Creek as part of the BOAC project.

Worthwhile projects

BOAC, celebrating its 20th year, encourages FFA chapters throughout the U.S. to do worthwhile projects in their community. About 100 members of Garden Spot FFA participated in a project to divert a portion of the Black Creek, which runs through the Harold Wentzel farm in Terre Hill, Lancaster County.

"We did a streambank fencing project, a cattle crossing, and rerouted a stream," said Lauffer, ag science instructor at Garden Spot. "That was the whole emphasis of it. And that's all erosion-control type things."

The FFA chapter received contributions from agencies and local industries for the project. The FFA chapter also raised money from a citrus sale and other projects — all totaled, about $11,000.

The project took three years from its inception in 1986, through the necessary paperwork, until groundbreaking in August 1989. The major portions of the project were completed in June 1990. The project needs more work, including additional fill, grass, and tree planting before it is completed, according to Lauffer. In addition, a permanent fence will be constructed on the site.

Project importance

The importance of the project rests with how it will benefit the community and the students.

"We'd try to work it right into the curriculum," said Lauffer. "When we were doing things on soils or water quality, the kids could actually see what they were doing."

A lot of the study involved water quality. The classes gathered data over a three-year span. A special grant from the Chesapeake Bay Foundation provided the means to study dissolved oxygen, nitrates, pH, and other factors.

Robert Lauffer, Garden Spot agriscience teacher, shows students the effects of erosion on the Black Creek before the renovations began.

In addition, a required ninth grade course, environmental science, introduced students to the project. The course exposes students to the effects of erosion and how it can be controlled.

Use information

"We use the information gathered from the project in our classroom," said Lauffer. "If it's nothing more than a 'free labor' force, then I don't think you gain much from it. Students in different grade levels had specific tasks that related to what they were doing in class."

Lauffer said that, in the past, students did not get much exposure to actual erosion field studies. "So we try to give the students a lot of hands-on experiences out in the field," he said. "Just the idea that these kids got exposure to a lot of different agencies, all of which have a similar concern — they are interested in improving the environment. But they all attack it from a little different angle. So we had to kind of act as a catalyst to pull them all together. It was a learning experience."

In the future, Garden Spot's ag department would like to use the results of their work to guide others who may attempt similar projects.

"BOAC's not a new thing," said Dr. Phil Ogline, head of the ag science department at Garden Spot. "It's something that the national FFA has been involved in for 20 years." The BOAC also has been awarding the AIV award since 1983.

As for the project, Ogline said the school will "continue monitoring what we've done on this stream." Garden Spot was recently awarded an $850 grant by the Chesapeake Bay Foundation to continue to monitor the stream over the next few years.

Lauffer Is Named Conservation Teacher Of Year

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

BIG FLATS, N.Y. — Fourteen years of experience helping kids learn and understand how important soil conservation is to farming has garnered a Lancaster County ag teacher state recognition.

Robert Lauffer was recently recognized as the winner of the Lancaster County and Pennsylvania Conservation Teacher of the Year Award. Lauffer, advisor to the Grassland FFA Building Our American Communities (BOAC) Program and agriscience teacher at Garden Spot High School, was presented the award at the annual meeting of the Soil Society of America at Big Flats, New York.

"What the school did on the BOAC Project is a part of it," said Lauffer. "I'm not taking credit. I guess it's just the nature of our curriculum and the fact that we have an administration that thinks it's important for the students to be involved in the community."

Robert Lauffer

Lauffer said, "Our students are very interested in conservation and our environment. By working BOAC into our curriculum, we give students a chance to actually do something that is real and makes a difference. That's the real beauty of this type of project."

Lauffer, who has been teaching 14 years at Garden Spot, has been involved with the Lancaster Co. Youth Conservation School since its conception in 1978. He spends three days each summer promoting soil conservation and introducing aspects of conservative education to the school.

"Most of the students who attend the school from Garden Spot are sponsored by local sportsmens' organizations after a recommendation from our ag program," said Lauffer. "However, we've had some students who went to that school, had an exposure to what that kind of thing is, and end up coming into our ag program as a result of attendance at the conservation school."

The ag teacher has also helped with the Ag Science Day for elementary school children held last May at Garden Spot.

Lauffer is advisor to the BOAC Project at Garden Spot. The project involved stream improvements on a farm on the Black Creek in Terre Hill.

G.S. FFA President Instrumental In BOAC Recognition

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Shelly Ogline, 16, a junior at Garden Spot High School, "came in and picked up where they had left off." And her efforts garnered her national recognition from the National FFA Foundation.

Shelly, president of the Grassland FFA Chapter, was chairperson of the Building Our American Communities (BOAC) Program sponsored by the National FFA Foundation. The chapter was honored as eastern regional finalist for soil conservation work for an erosion control project on a portion of the Black Creek in Terre Hill.

Shelly was one of 10 contestants at the Achievement In Volunteerism Award sponsored by the National FFA. She was instrumental in continuing the project, which began at Garden Spot in 1986. Work is ongoing at the project.

"The actual planning for this project started about three years ago," Shelly said. "But I came in last year and picked up where they had left off."

Shelly was involved in recognizing contributors to the project, working with landowners, and on fund-raising efforts. "We raised about $11,000 as a chapter, soliciting at the local sportsmen's clubs meeting," she said. "I wrote a lot of thank-you letters. At our annual banquet, I also had the opportunity to recognize some of the people and organizations that made the project a success."

Shelly maintained the paperwork and monitored the responses from various agencies, including the Department of Environmental Resources (DER), the Army Corps of Engineers, the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, and other agencies.

"We had to submit all kinds of applications," she said, "about two years of red tape and things until we were finally able to start the actual work."

At the National FFA Community Development Conference held in Washington, D.C., the project team submitted a draft, including graphics, pictures, and details about the project. Shelly was also interviewed about her role in the BOAC project.

Shelly Ogline

BOAC will award the AIV and the BOAC project award at the 63d National FFA Convention early next month.

"Interviews lasted only about 5-10 minutes for the award," she said. "But it was a lot of preparation."

Pantano Elected At Lancaster Country Association Banquet

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

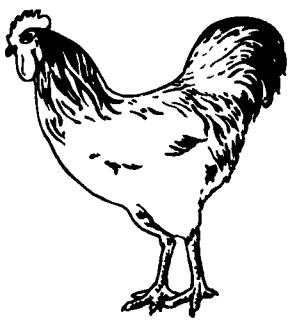
LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — At the annual Lancaster County Poultry Association banquet, Paul Wolgemuth passed on the president's gravel to Thomas Pantano. Pantano, from Strasburg, works in broiler and layer service for Penfield Feeds.

About 280 persons attended the banquet held Tuesday night at Willow Valley Convention Center, Lancaster.



Members of the association elected four new board members. They are J.Roger Moyer Jr., Lititz; Robert Groff, Quarryville; Robert Kreider, Lawn; and Thomas Beachler, Manheim. Current board members include Milton Landis, Parkesburg; Mike Harrold, Lititz; Richard Landis, Manheim; Guy Martin, Lancaster; Barry Renno, Mount Joy; and Clyde Slaymaker Jr., Strasburg.

Terry Hilsher of Elizabethtown was appointed by the board to complete the term of Kenneth Martin, chairman of promotions, who resigned because of other responsibilities.

Clair and Shirley High presented a check to the association for $3,572.

High said, the money was raised at the Ephrata Fair poultry booth. "The object of the fair booth is not only to make money but to promote poultry, turkey, and eggs," he said. "And we did that. We had the second best year in profits."

In appreciation for the High's efforts, the association gave them $250.

Wolgemuth said, "We would be in serious trouble without the Highs. They take off a week to spend 7 a.m. to midnight overseeing the fair booth."

Jennifer Shaffer, who was raised on a poultry farm and who was Miss Pennsylvania 1983-84, entertained with a musical medley of classical, pop, and gospel tunes.

Grangers Honor

being made by a small group of activitists, including the animal rights people, who could directly affect the future of agriculture. Some "take relationships between humans and animals very seriously — so seriously indeed that they believe animals have rights, including a very important right — not to be eaten by human beings." He said the animal rights/animal welfare debate is but one of "several hot issues" that could affect agriculture.

Curtis used the example of the Alar debate and how, by banning the once commonly used pesticide, some apple farms were driven out of business. "The apple industry lost $100 million on that one. Hundreds of family-owned orchards went bankrupt."

Curtis mentioned a ballot initiative in California that, if passed next month, will phase out all pesticides in the state. And the issue of bovine somatotropin (BST) continues to rage "at this very moment across the country," he said. "BST is safe — the FDA has said so. After all, it is a ntural hormone. But so what? The opinions of a dozen activists and a score of journalists are enough to overwhelm the evidence of hundreds of researchers and government watchdogs."

Curtis said that because the natural hormone is being synthesized using the tools of biotechnology, and because it's being injected into the cow, "all of a sudden people are afraid of it."

Place for science

The dairy and animal science head said there is a place for science "even in times of plenty. Agricultural scientists used to work mainly on productivity, efficiency, and economics. But it's all a new ball game. Now we work also on the scientific facts related to public issues such as animal welfare, pesticide residues, and BST in dairy cows. In this era of high tech in agriculture, it turns out there's a new place for science."

Curtis pointed out that few scientists work on productivity and efficiency, and more on "those aspects of agriculture and food that reassure our consumers of the nutritiousness and of the safety of this nation's food supply, of the well-being of farm animals in modern production systems, and of the environmental stewardship of the farming community."

But the problems of obtaining enough money to continue the efforts grow, according to Curtis. Public support of agriculture is decreasing steadily. "And it's really getting to a crisis point all across the country," he said.

The public that is making all the accusations and demanding answers "is also closing the valve on the flow of public money for the support of agricultural science," said Curtis. "The infrastructure of agricultural science is eroding in America right before our eyes."

Needs support

To stop the erosion, according to Curtis, ag science needs support from outside agricultural science. "Organizations such as the Grange are likely contributors to this effort."

At the banquet, the Grange also announced the new Granger of the Year. Patricia Rudy, Sewickley, a member of the Mt. Nebo Grange in

Two Holstein Herds

Sinans.

Last year, fourth place was the best that either farm placed in a ranking of production. That recognition was received by Smyser for average milk production.

For both farms, the 1990 records showed a significant increase from 1989 results.

Last year, the Smyser herd averaged 73.7 cows, each averaging 25,495 pounds of milk, 842 pounds of butterfat and 794 pounds of protein. That represents increases of 8 percent in milk and protein production and 6 percent in milkfat.

The Sinans herd had averaged 25,051 pounds milk, 905 pounds of milkfat and 789 pounds protein in 1987-88. Compared to this past year's production, the Sinans saw a 5-percent change in milk production, a 10 percent change in milkfat and a 3 percent change in protein production.

Herd management apparently changed during the past several years for both operations, according to DHIA records.

Both farmers said they did indeed change some of their ways of managing their herds.

According to DHIA records, from 1987 to 1990, both operations saw significant changes in their herds for the percentage of first calf heifers.

Culling inefficient cows apparently picked up at the same time, according to records. Also, the total number of cows (dry and replacement animals) retained on the farm increased.

Neither operation's milking herd population went up significantly, but records show that both the percentage of first calf heifers in the herd and cows removed doubled within the last three years.

At the Sinan operation, 1987 records show 34 percent first calf heifers. This year, that went to 55 percent.

The Sinan removal rate went from 26 percent in 1987 to 47 percent this past year. Their total cows changed from 97 cows two years ago to 158 this past year.

At the Smyser operation, the 1987 first calf heifer rate was 23 percent. This past year it was 51 percent.

The cull rate in 1987 was 25 percent. This past year it was up to 49 percent. The total number of cows in 1987 was 100 and this past year it was 158.

Milos Sinan said he did in fact makes some changes to the operation in order to push overall production. He said he has also concentrated on milkfat production.

An increase of 10 percent in a herd's milkfat production has to be attributed to something specific.

The key to his success is apparently feeding constantly and using sulfur and yeast additives in addition to high protein haylage and protein and mineral additives.

He also spends a lot of time with the cows.

"We have pretty good quality feed," he said. "We always make it early and we are always working with the cows, all the time. We have a pretty good breed and we've been getting some pretty good cows all the time."

Early 1987, the Sinan's switched to milking three times a day.

"We were in the barn all the time anyway," he said, "and we were almost 23,000 pounds and they were leaking milk before we went to three times a day. It was the only thing to do."

The Sinans own a 213-acre farm and, with working two other farms, operate on about 400 acres.

All members of the family — Milos, wife Sandy, daughter Marlane, and sons Mevlan and Milos Jr. — work the farm. One hired man helps out.

In addition to milking, Milos drives milk truck every other night. The sons drive milk truck full time. Milos has been driving for 30 years and serves 45-dairymen in Indiana County.

The cows are held in a 120-foot, by 60-foot barn with 81 stanchions. Most of the cows' time is spent in the barn with food in front of them.

Sinan said he has gone to using yeast, which he claims increases their appetite, in order to get the cows to eat more and produce more.

The stalls are in three lines and were put in this past year along with a new pulse-drive, two-inch pipeline system and a gravity manure system with lagoon. Milos attributes a low somatic cell count to the new system.

He raises most of the feed — of the impact of the highway is not just a facade to hide the decision that has already been made.

In speaking with my neighbors, not one has expressed support for the highway. The Lancaster County Planning Commission recently came out in support of an agricultural district stretching through the county, including Earl Township. A new four-lane limited access expressway may not be compatible with an agricultural conservation zone. The new highway will have a negative impact on the farming areas and the people who live there. We need to decide if we want to preserve some of our agricultural areas, or if we want a new expressway more.

Christian Earl Eaby, Esq.
New Holland

Being raised on a south-eastern Pennsylvania farm, I knew the basics of growing crops and food. It was not until I joined the Erth-Rite, Inc. (formerly Zook & Ranck, Inc.) family that I realized there is a whole lot more to having good corn yields or large sweet strawberries than planting, watering, and waiting. The Key... is in the soil! The earth that we live on is one of the most precious resources that we have. We need to care for it as a mother cares for her young. Nurturing it and bringing it to its fullest potential. Adding fertilizer to the soil when planting a crop is usually our main concern. Sadly enough adding fertilizer as suggested by a chart is not always what the soil or the plant needs.

If the soil is not healthy itself, how can it in turn feed the plant?

Depending on what plants or crops are being raised, fertilizers need to be added to enhance their growth. This is where organic fertilizers come into play. The most positive aspect of organics is that they come right from the earth and are not processed before being sold to the consumer. This is so important because when correctly applied it is not harmful to the soil in any way. Chemicals on the other hand, tend to tighten the soil and make it less porous when water is added.

Another plus for using organic fertilizers in todays farming era, is that they contain no tracers. When chemical fertilizer farmers apply fertilizers to fields or gardens, the intention is to have a good crop yield... but through the power of water, these dangerous chemicals are ending up in streams and rivers and eventually the Chesapeake Bay. The alarming fact is that by containing tracers, modern technology can trace the chemical back to the exact farmer and thus a fine can be issued.

The decision is in your hands!

think the market has been more stable this year. Stable prices bring growers."

The number of buyers attending the auction has also increase by an estimated 25 percent, according to Courtney.

Furthmore, Courtney predicts an increase in this type of business in Pennsylvania, as some of the other typical farming industries continue to decrease in size and profitability.

"I think you are going to see a trend to selling produce by auction method, because of having a market price being established by supply and demand," he said.

Furthermore, the system rewards farmers who do better jobs than others, unlike some of the systems in use now, he said.

With the auction method of selling produce, Courtney said, "the better quality product (offered), the better price the product brings."

To give an example of what kinds of Pennsylvania-grown fruits and vegetables are available at roadside markets, or in regular farmers markets, this week's prices are reported below.

Propane Stocks Low

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff recently advised farmers to check their propane supplies and not to rely on a single source of heating energy this winter.

"Farmers with empty propane tanks ought to think about filling up before it gets cold," Wolff said. "There were local shortages during severe cold last year, and this year that is compounded by Middle East supply uncertainties."

Wolff also advised farmers not to rely exclusively on one type of fuel.

"This is a good time to think about farm projects that promote conservation or enable a farm operation to switch fuels if one type should become scarce," Wolff said.

The United States Department of Energy (DOE) has notified the Pennsylvania Energy Office that primary propane stocks are currently 15 percent below last year's levels. In addition, DOE's Energy Information Administration predicts possible propane supply problems in the Northeast this winter.

Milk Producers Association Names Administrative Manager

GREEN, N.Y.— Cathryn Buck of Skaneateles, N.Y., was recently named administrative manager of the Milk Producers Voluntary Agricultural Association in Greene, N.Y.

This association was formed to improve and promote the economic conditions and products of persons engaged in agriculture in the Northeast.

Membership in the association entitles farmers and agribusinessmen to participate in many programs, including health coverage plans in the Milk Producers Health and Welfare Trust Fund.

Various new programs to benefit association members are expected to be implemented in early 1991.

Mrs. Buck recently served as the communications director of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency in Batavia, N.Y.; and she is currently working toward a degree in English education at Cortland State University.

Mrs. Buck received her bachelor of sciences degree in communications from the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell University in May 1988. She and her husband own a 60-head beef herd in Skaneateles.

Although she is currently employed part-time by the Milk producers Voluntary Agricultural Association, Mrs. Buck is to begin her full-time position January 1. Prior to that, Mrs. Buck will continue schooling and do her practice teaching in Moravia, N.Y.

fiberdome® SILO CHUTE made with fiberglass, the material of the future — and proven in the past —

The Fiberdome chute is designed and engineered to be installed on most types of silos. Its structure allows it to withstand the toughest beating the weather elements or silo unloading systems can possibly dish out.

The chute is constructed in full 7 1/2' sections to minimize the number of joints. Connecting joints have a 2 1/2" tongue and groove design to keep feed in and water out. The large ribbed construction adds stability and strength.

Fiberglass is durable, corrosion-proof, attractive and translucent, allowing sunlight to pass through. Sunlight quickly dries interior moisture in the chute. The hard gleaming gelcote surface will remain for many years.

WIFE AND MOTHER - Barbara Hafer makes time for family despite busy schedule. Husband Jack and Barbara, top left, have four children. In picture are, clockwise, Regan with husband Chuck; daughter-in-law Suzanne, son John, family dog Sarge, Kelly and Beth.

AUDITOR GENERAL - Barbara Hafer oversees $20 billion in state spending each year and supervises a staff of 900 that ferrets out mismanagement and waste.

MEET THE REAL BARBARA HAFER

Who's the real Barbara Hafer? Nurse? Wife? Mother? Former county commissioner? Auditor General? Republican nominee for governor?

All of the above. And proud of it.

Barbara Hafer has been a success at every job she's undertaken. And won every election.

Agriculture won't be taken for granted in the Hafer administration. She says the state's Number One industry deserves more support from state government and its farmers more respect from DER, PennDOT, Game Commission and other agencies.

Look at her credentials

As a graduate nurse, she understands the problems of rural health care.

FARMER ADVOCATE - Barbara Hafer consults regularly with farmers like Dan Naylor, Lackawanna county, center, and Ken Rutt, Lancaster county. She supports more funds for ag research, state bottle bill, wetland exemptions for farms and more (not less) vo-ag education and FFA activities.

As county commissioner, she authored the first code of conduct for Allegheny county employees.

As fiscal conservative, she led the fight in Allegheny county against unwarranted tax increases. And won.

As president of the Allegheny County Prison Board, she received state wide acclaim for developing innovative methods to solve prison overcrowding.

As founder and Executive Director of the Allegheny County's Center for Victims of Violent Crime, she brought aid and support to thousands of victims.

As governor, Barbara Hafer promises to be a fulltime farmer advocate. "Agriculture's problems in Harrisburg today start at the top," she insists.

alfalfa hay (a lot of haylage), corn, oats, barley, and wheat.

Sinan also buys supplemental feeds — protein additives, distillers grain, cotton seed, minerals ...

Sandy takes care of the breeding program and uses sires almost exclusively through Atlantic Breeders. She selects production, but also accounts for legs.

The high culling rate reflects Milos philosophy that dairying is a business; if the cow doesn't perform well, she's out.

Some other changes occured in the business within the last three years, Milos said.

According to Sinan, "we had some problems with the heifers (legs, he said). So we built a heifer barn (in 1987) and that contributed a lot to heifers coming on and doing a lot better for us."

The heifer barn is semi-Virginia style with an open scrape alley and bedded packs.

In addition to the other work done at the farm this past year, Milos said he added another silo up at the heifer barn.

"We have a lot of haylage and we fill a silo. We like to get it in (with)in a day and a half. We feed a lot. When we built the heifer facility we put a silo in and added another silo this year. Now we have two silos at the barn and two at the heifer barn."

He said the protein percentage of his home-grown hay and haylage runs in the high teens and low 20s.

"We test all the time and we go by that. It's almost like a TMR (total mixed ration). We mix it up in a ... cart. When it comes out, it is pretty much mixed feed. We feed that about four times a day."

As far as leading the state in herd butterfat production, Sinan explained that the sulfur seemed to do the trick.

"We were having a problem with butterfat two years ago and we always did breed to get it," he said. But a high butterfat test evaded him.

"My wife read an article in some publication about using sulfur. Now we add 3 ounces of sulfur (a prepared additive) and yeast culture.

"We were running 3.2 percent (milkfat) and 3.3 percent and (after using the sulfur and yeast) we increased by the end of the month to 3.8 and 4.0 and have been up there ever since," Milos said.

However, Sinan said he tries to keep up with all aspects of dairying.

With their breeding program, with his wife keeping an eye for heat detection "We have preety good luck with first service."

He also does things like keep half the barn lights on and a radio playing during the night to encourage the cows to eat through the night.

Ventilation is also important to the Sinan family.

"We have fans all the time," Milos said. "In the summertime we have 14 fans, but we need to do better with ventilation.

"We're looking for all the production we can (get) out of our cows," he said.

The herd also get a herd health check twice a month, so body scoring is done to an extent, but not as much as some experts suggest it should be.

Showing cattle as part of establishing a side business of selling genetics isn't in immediate plans. And Milos said its the milk that has enabled the family to survive.

"We have a pretty busy schedule so we don't show too much. We are paying our bills and paying our way. I think that was a big plus. Back when the milk price down, we always had a little extra."

When the price of milk went up, Milos said the conscientious lifestyle enabled them to improve operations.

But there is something else that Sinan said is very important to successful dairying — keeping an open mind and not being afraid to try something new.

"Right now we're not planning to increase the herd size too much, but I'm always looking for more milk. No question about it. We will [illegible] We read [illegible]s and pick up a lot of stuff like [illegible]," he said.

But Milos adds that driving milk truck for 30 years has given him and education in successful dairying that can't be beat.

"I learned a lot while hauling. I've seen the best and seen the worst," he said. And now that his sons are driving truck, he said he sees that education taking place in them.

seems appropriate as we commemorate the 50th anniversary of the first conservation district of Lancaster County that we also commend you (Funk) for your 40 years of dedication and guidance for conservation of Lancaster County's natural resources.

Commissioner James Huber said Lancaster County is referred to as one of the three most fertile areas in the world, and we face many challenges. Huber said soil conservation district helps us address these issues and suggested that if we had not conserved the soil, we would have needed to go to the Chesapeake Bay to see Lancaster County.

Commissioner Brad Fisher said Funk was a great educator and a great persuader, helping public officials to make correct decisions to prevent Lancaster County and work to make sure our heritage is here for future generations.

Mark Philips, representing US Congressman Robert Walker, presented congratulatory letters to both Funk and Stauffer.

Noah Wenger said Funk has become a legend in his own time. He said many of us have benefited from the Lancaster County Conservation District's efforts on our own farms. "It's good to preserve our farmland for continued agriculture production," Wenger said. "But that's only part of the answer. We also need to conserve the soil and water on the land we keep for agriculture.

Gib Armstrong presented a citation from the state senate to Funk for "splendid contributions and on being a driving force."

Terry Scheetz presented the state house citations and told of a personal experience when Funk had testified in court to help portect a no-till operation on his farm. Gerald Root, USDA Soil Conservation Service, said Lancaster County is known across the nation for its productive farms and beautiful landscapes. "And part of the beauty is indeed the mark of conservation," Root said.

In closing, Funk thanked everyone for coming to celebrate 50 years of conservation in Lancaster County and said, "It is important to do what we're doing. Let's keep it up."

Amos and Esta Funk were honored for 40 years of service to the Lancaster County Conservation Service. Mel Davis former administrator,US Soil Conservation Service (left), made the presentation.

plans and invited the dairymen to drive to the dock and watch the loading, set from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Nichol said the sale of registered Holsteins to the Egyptian outfit represents a continually increasing demand for well-bred dairy cattle.

About 30 of the heifers bound for the Middle East were purchased from Chester County dairymen, Nichol said.

In other business, members of the Chester County group elected four members to its nine-member board of directors.

New directors are Jeannette Brooks, James Miller, John St. John. Re-elected to the post was Ken Umble.

Walter Wurster, dairy extension agent for Chester County, urged members to encourage their children to become involved in the county 4-H program. He said the number of Holstein-project youth has dropped significantly.

Pro Ag Spots To Air

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)— The Ag Issues Forum, comprised of representatives from the business, government, and agriculture producer sectors, has announced plans to air a series of "pro ag" spots in cooperation with WGAL-TV. The purpose of this series is to acquaint the general public with information concerning some of the more controversial ag issues of today. These include environmental concerns, animal rights, agriculture as a business, and farm safety.

These meetings are intended to gather input from the agriculture community as the Forum moves toward developing a positive response to current critical issues. The support of those in the industry is extremely important. Questions or comments prior to the meetings may be addressed to Michael Brubaker, managing director of Pennsylvania Agricultural Issues Forum, 627-0065 or Jay Howes, manager of agricultural services at The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce.

Farm Wife Organizes Therapeutic Horseback Program

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

EVERETT (Bedford Co.)—Lois Frederick, a teacher for the mentally retarded, and her husband, Alan, have a 1,000-acre farm in Bedford County.

Lois is quick to admit, however, that she is not a farmwife who gets up each morning to tend the cows. "I help out when I'm needed," she says.

Being needed on a farm of this size with 400 registered Jerseys to milk is understandable. Lois also does much of the work involved with the farm's two riding horses.

It was this interest in horses which led Lois to organize a therapeutic horseback riding program for the mentally retarded children of Bedford County.

"It's been amazing how many people have pitched in to volunteer," Lois said. "From the beginning we have had people willing to help us in getting grant money, lead horses, make donations. It's been wonderful. One family donated a sheepskin for under a saddle. Another lady made us a leading bridle."

The program got on its feet this past summer with ten registrants and at least 50 volunteers. "It takes all of the volunteers," Lois says. "It takes at least three per rider each time we meet."

Saturday mornings and Mondays, after school, have been set aside for lessons. In addition, Lois takes her own class from the Bedford School District for lessons one day every other week.

The location is provided by Susie Sushko who owns a tack shop, boarding stable, and gives riding lessons on a small farm near Everett. Susie also acts as a volunteer instructor and leases two of her horses to the program.

Lois donates one of her horses and a fourth is provided by a friend, Christy King. "All of the horses," Lois says, "are extremely gentle. They seem to sense what's going on here."

The farm is equipped with a training ring. Volunteers such as the Schellsburg VFW and local contractors pitched in to build a wheelchair ramp and Intermediate Unit 08 provided funds for a mounting block.

"It's obvious the children are thrilled with the program," says Lois. "One hour on horseback is more therapeutic than any other physical exercise we could give these kids.

"Many of these children never had any idea what it was like to walk," she continues. "A horse has the same type of hip action that a person does. So, when a child is on the horse he actually gets the same sensation as walking. It's extremely motivating."

Lois says the aim of any treatment for those who usually have limited motor skills is to improve circulation, respiration, balance, coordination, agility, self-confidence, and mental relaxation.

She also feels that therapeutic horseback riding treats the abilities, as well as the disabilities of the rider.

One of the most active participants in the program since its origin has been Danny Kagarise.

Danny, 13, was born with cerebral palsy. He is totally deaf and has always been confined to a wheelchair.

His mother, Freda, is a widow with one other child, Andy, 8. When Danny's father was killed in an automobile accident, the community pitched in to buy a van for Freda to make wheelchair transportation easier.

Freda was one of the first to volunteer as a helper in the riding program. She has seen tremendous progress in Danny as he has begun to learn basic riding skills.

Sometimes as many as four volunteers flank this young man as he feels the natural sway of the horses. At 13, he's quite tall, and it takes several people to help him on and off the horses.

"It gives children like Danny a different perception to be on a horse," Lois says. "Once mounted, the handicapped rider no longer looks up at other people; the other people look up at him or her. Add the benefit of exposure to fresh air and sunshine, and the result is an experience that is anxiously anticipated each week."

Lois says she cannot express enough gratitude to all of the people who were so quick to volunteer. "It was better than I ever anticipated," she admits.

The program is governed by a board. Participants are asked to pay $10 per lesson but donations of money are set aside for those who could not afford this kind of financial outlay.

"It's become a time for these kids to socialize and have fun they never thought they could have before," Lois adds. "The positive effects on self-esteem, self-image, and self-confidence in the handicapped rider cannot be overstated."

Twins Born To 17-Year-Old Cow

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — Some folks will do just about anything to get a photo, but when it's cold and wet, and you have to tramp through a soggy two-acre paddock in white sneakers, with sixty or so head of beef cattle thronging you, to do so, you begin to wonder if your head's on straight.

Things like that can happen when somebody calls and says, "I have a seventeen-year-old cow that had twins."

"Is it a rare thing?" she asks.

"Yes," he replies.

"How did you get my telephone number?" she queries.

"I looked inside the Lancaster Farming paper and found it," he says.

Well, that's how it began.

Larry Frazier of Berlin is pretty proud of the Charolais Hereford Cross beef cow that is still going strong in the motherhood arena. She recently gave birth to twin calves, bringing to 16 the number of calves she has had since her first one when she was two years old.

Fraizer says he bought her with the intention of eating her but never got around to it. Ultimately, she became "Charlie," to the Frazier family.

The twins were sired by a registered Simmental bull owned by William Shoemaker from Buffalo Mills in Bedford County.

Frazier says it is unusual for beef cattle to have twins and these were the first set born to Charlie. However, over the years, three sets were born to females in his herd.

Rotational grazing is what Frazier says he uses for pasturing the animals. He says a fellow named Tom Calvert helped him to set it up.

The 12 paddocks are each approximately two acres in area. When the animals have grazed clean one paddock they are moved into another one. Frazier says this usually occurs every two days. He says this type of pasturing is regularly used in New Zealand.

Of course, all the previous information was gleaned following her foray into the paddock where the animals were grazing.

She had, by then, inelegantly crossed the wires of several electric fences and was silently thank-

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

If you'd like a quick main dish for dinner, try microwaving pork chops or pork cut in strips.

I've done a lot of pork microwaving, and I've discovered these are the two easiest and quickest types of pork to microwave. And they are the ones that end up tasting the most tender and flavorful. Try today's recipes and see what you think. But first, here are a few hints on microwaving pork to get you started.

Microwave pork chops on a low power setting. This is about 200 watts. On most microwave ovens, this setting is called Medium-Low and is 30 percent power. On some brands, it may be called Defrost or Setting No. 3. On a 400-watt microwave oven, it will be 50 percent (half of 400, or 200 watts). On a 500-watt microwave with six to 10 powers, it may be Setting No. 4 (40 percent of 500 watts, or 200 watts).

Weigh chops or note the weight listed on the store label. If you have less than the recipe calls for, microwave less time. Figure about 12 minutes per pound of boneless half-inch-thick chops.

Choose plastic wrap for a tight cover to hold in heat and steam. This helps keep chops moist and tender.

To ensure even cooking, turn chops over and rearrange them halfway through cooking. Rotate dish as necessary.

Cook chops to a medium doneness — that means chops can look slightly pink when done. They will be juicy, tender and safe to eat. According to the Food Safety and Inspection Service, fresh pork can safely be cooked to a medium doneness (160°F). FSIS tests show that trichinae, if present, are killed instantly when pork is cooked to the rare stage (147°F).

Let chops stand, still tightly covered, and check for final doneness after the standing time.

Be careful not to overcook chops. It takes some practice to judge doneness correctly. See Easy Barbecued Pork Chops (below) for specific doneness checks. You may want to save those directions for use in other pork chop recipes.

When pork chops, steaks, or boneless country rib (loin) pieces are thinly sliced into strips, you can speed up microwaving and cook them on High power.

A waxed-paper cover is better for pork strips than plastic wrap. It holds in some heat and helps promote even cooking, while allowing steam to escape and produce a stir-fry taste. Strips stay juicy and tender with a waxed-paper cover, but they tend to toughen if covered tightly with plastic wrap.

The strips cook quickly on High power, but they must be stirred often during the very short cooking time. Otherwise, some strips will overcook and toughen and others will remain undone. Stir strips as indicated in the recipe — usually after each two minutes of cooking for a pound of strips or after one minute of cooking with smaller amounts.

Easy Barbecued Pork Chops

1 teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon onion powder
⅛ teaspoon garlic powder
Dash black pepper
1¼ pounds boneless pork loin chops, ½ inch thick (4 butterfly chops or 5 small chops)
⅓ cup chili sauce
2 tablespoons packed brown sugar
1-1½ tablespoons low-salt soy sauce

In a small dish, combine paprika, onion powder, garlic powder and black pepper; sprinkle on both sides of pork chops and lightly rub in. Place chops in microwavable baking dish, with thickest parts to outside edge of dish. Cover tightly with plastic wrap. Microwave on Medium-Low (180 to 210 watts, 30 percent power) 6 minutes (for 1 pound) to 8 minutes (for 1¼ pounds). (Chops will be barely warm.) Turn chops over, rearranging so least-done parts are to outside edge of dish. Re-cover and vent by turning back one small corner of plastic wrap. Continue microwaving on Medium-Low 5 to 7 minutes, rotating dish as necessary for even cooking.

Check for doneness at minimum time. Look at chops and press each with your fingertip through plastic wrap. If you see a large reddish spot in centers and/or chops feel very soft, they're still raw. (With bone-in chops, undone spots are likely to be near bone.) Then continue microwaving on 200 watts until suggested maximum total time is up, or longer if necessary. Check for doneness after each 30 seconds of microwaving. When done, chops should still look pink in center and feel slightly soft. Let stand, tightly covered, 5 minutes.

Check chops for final doneness by cutting a small slit near centers. (With bone-in chops, cut near bones.) When perfectly done, chops should be of medium doneness — juices will be pink, and pork will be tender, slightly pink, and juicy. If rare, re-cover and microwave about 2 minutes longer on Medium-Low. Let stand again.

While chops stand, stir together chili sauce, brown sugar and soy sauce. If desired, microwave (High) 45 to 60 seconds to heat sauce. To serve, place shops on platter and top each with sauce.

For 4 bone-in chops (½ inch thick, total weight 1 to 1¼ pounds): Microwave on Medium-Low, 5 minutes (for 1 pound) to 7 minutes (for 1¼ pounds). Turn chops over and rotate dish; re-cover. Continue microwaving on Medium-Low 5 to 8 more minutes. check for doneness and allow standing time, as above.

Each serving: 232 calories, 28g protein, 9g fat, 8g carbohydrate, 470mg sodium, 83mg cholesterol.

Easy Sweet-Sour Pork

1 teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon onion powder
⅛ teaspoon garlic powder
⅛ teaspoon ground ginger
½ pound boneless pork chops, pork steak, or boneless country (loin) ribs, cut into thin strips
½ large green pepper, cut into thin strips
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 can (8 ounces) pineapple chunks
2 tablespoons packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
½ tablespoon cornstarch

In microwavable 1-quart casserole, stir together paprika, onion powder, garlic powder and ginger. Stir in pork strips. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes at room temperature. Refrigerate, if necessary to marinate longer.

Microwave pork mixture, covered with waxed paper, on High 2½ to 4 minutes, stirring well after each minute, or until barely done. Stir in green pepper strips and soy sauce; re-cover. Microwave (High) 1 to 2 minutes, stirring after each minute, or until peppers are barely tender-crisp. Let stand, covered, about 5 minutes, or while making sauce.

Combine undrained pineapple, brown sugar, vinegar and cornstarch in a microwavable 1-quart measure. Microwave (High) 2 to 3 minutes, stirring after each minute, or until bubbly and thick. Stir into pork mixture. Serve over rice. Makes 2 servings.

Each serving — without rice: 331 calories, 28g protein, 9g fat, 35g carbohydrate, 266mg sodium, 83mg cholesterol.

Twins Born To Cow

ful that the power to them had been cut in advance of her foolhardy adventure. She had reached the destination without inadvertently targeting either a puddle or a pie with her foot, though many were available. She saw that the babies were standing at least an acre apart. Their mother, as identified by her host, was off in another direction and she wondered wearily how in the world she was expected to photograph them together. Then, by George, she discovered that the man had gotten the little buggers rounded up with seemingly little effort.

She began shooting photos. Then, time to switch film.

She started to reload the camera. He kept saying, "Look how they're standing. Just as if they had posed for the picture." Trying to hurry, she fumbled with the camera mechanism. Frazier had her nervous about losing the best shot of all. Finally, she was able to aim the lens in the twins' direction and started shooting again. "Get over there with the cow?" she commanded him. "I want one of you and the mother."

Frazier obeyed but Charlie wanted nothing to do with him. In fact, he was aggravating Charlie just by getting so close, and she, Charlie, exercizing full feminine independence, gave him the snub, and turned to walk away.

Poor darling. She just didn't realize how proud we were of her accomplishment of birthing sixteen wonderful babies over the years.

Anyway, the mission was accomplished.

Frazier and his wife, Frances, have three children. Eric is now 20, Tammie is 18, and Cory is 16. Frazier also works for the Mayfair Cemetery in Somerset.

Larry Frazier says hello to 'Charlie' his 17-year-old beef cow that is mother to twins.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

On an ordinary day I will rake leaves, pick green beans, make applesauce and pick some of our late sweetcorn. Allen, my husband, will mow the yard, clean corn or help with silo filling. However, the other Saturday we left the farm and joined a tour to the Baltimore Harbor.

We arrived about 10 o'clock in the morning and our bus dropped us off at the National Aquarium. Here we saw seals, stingrays, sharks and electric eels that can stun their prey with up to 800 volts of electricity. We saw many colorful fish in tanks of fresh water and also in salt water. There were red-eyed tree frogs that prefer to walk instead of jump.

Level five of the aquarium contained a South American rain forest. It was very damp here and the tropical trees dripped water. Bright yellow and orange parrots sat high up on the limbs.

As we came out of the aquarium we were greeted by sunshine. This was a pleasant surprise as we'd had rain earlier in the morning. We walked to an area where many shops were located. They included food stands that sold a variety of refreshments. There was a restaurant with outdoor tables and live music.

I had been to the harbor area several times before but the one thing that I had not seen was the IMAX Theatre in the Maryland Science Center. So I bought tickets for two shows. The pictures on the 5-story high IMAX screen were magnificent as they showed us how earth looked from space. It was as though we were one of the crew on the "Columbia" as it circled the globe after blasting off from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

After viewing an exhibit, which told of ten ways to clean up the Chesapeake Bay, we walked past an old sailing ship "Constellation" in the harbor. Many cabin cruisers were also docked nearby. We each got an ice cream cone, which cost $1.60 each, and sat on a bench to watch passersby before going to the bus that would take us back to Lancaster.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

A white spot near the corner of the woods caught my eye as I made the short trip across the yard from dairy barn to house. The herd had just been put in for evening milking, and I was headed to the kitchen for the mandatory pre-milking snack to see me through three hours of barn chores.

But snacking would have to wait. That white spot looked like a hawk.

A quick check with the binoculars confirmed a large red-tailed perched on the limb. It offered a perfect vantage point for spying on the alfalfa field.

Only an hour or so before, a tractor and baler had removed all traces of the drying windrows of fourth cutting hay from that field. The clipped expanse now offered precious little cover to the small rodents which until a few days before had found security in the leafy growth. Even laying in windrows, the hay gave plentiful hiding places to the resident field mice and moles.

For a red-tailed hawk, the harvested hay field offered easy hunting, a virtual buffet from which a sharp-eyed bird of prey could more or less pick and choose from the tiny, tasty tidbits luckless enough to fall into vision range.

A brilliant late-afternoon sun highlighted that corner of the farm and spotlighted the shining white on the big bird's breast feathers as it perched there on the high limb. Between washing cows and moving milkers, I caught glances of the hawk through the barn windows for at least the next half hour.

Our fascination with the hawks of our neighborhood has spurred us to search out areas within an afternoon's drive where birds of prey "hang out." Or maybe "hover over" would be more appropriate.

Hawk watching hereabouts peaks in the fall, with the migration of thousands of them along the eastern ridges of the Appalachian Mountains. Hawk Mountain Sanctuary, near Kempton, is probably the best known location in the region for observing this phenomenon of Mother Nature.

On ideal migration days, a steady flow of hawks passes with viewing range from the rocky outcroppings atop the mountain. Where hunters once killed dozens of hawks in a single day's time, now hundreds of visitors gather to watch and marvel at the migration of various species of hawks and an occasional eagle. The sanctuary's center offers educational displays and related amenities. It's a great place to introduce kids to birds and outdoor life in general.

Other places we've read about and search out are less known but a little closer home for us. Waggoners Gap near Carlisle gave us our first real taste of mountain-top hawk spotting. Our local Rocky Ridge Park east of York is becoming known for hawk watching as well.

Sitting on an outcropping of ancient rocks, literally on top of a mountain ridge, is a breathtaking experience in itself. Flatter lands slope away in the distance, offering a panorama of farms and fields, towns and woodlands. Sights and sounds rise from the valley floor below, and you feel a little removed from the world, more a spectator than a participant.

Every such spot we've tried seems to have at least one veteran hawk watcher who doesn't object to novices hanging around listening as birds are spotted and identified. Warm dress is mandatory, since a cool breeze blows constantly.

Our local hawks seem to have no inclination to head to more southern climates, remaining year-round. Having an interstate pass through the farmland probably encourages their residency. Roadkills make great eating for hawks and for our ever-present turkey vultures.

Just this morning, the combine lumbered through the corn field which runs between the yard and the hawks' woods. Rows of standing stalks have been reduced to shredded husks and residues of broken cob. Strewn across the ground are some scattered bits of broken and lost kernels — kernels to attract the mice to come and nibble, mice which in turn should entice the hawks.

For at least a day or two, maybe we can watch hawks from the back porch. Not as scenic as a mountaintop, I grant you. But the seats are softer.

Write A Note, Win Money

CLEVELAND, Ohio — Expressions of love, empathy, and support are important to everyone — but for kids they are essential. Personal notes that say, "You're so special to me" or "I Wish I Could Make It Better" from a parent can increase a child's understanding of emotions while reinforcing basic communication skills.

To encourage quality exchanges between parent and child, American Greetings and Family Circle have launched a nationwide "Write a Special Note" contest with a prize package totaling over $70,000.

Prizes will be awarded as follows: grand prize — a Chevrolet Lumina APV Passenger Van and first prize — a special vacation for four to San Diego, CA. Additional prizes of Apple IIc Plus Computer Systems will be awarded to contest finalists. The contest runs from October 16 through November 28, 1990.

With the "Write A Special Note" contest, American Greetings and Family Circle are searching for an outstanding note from parent to child that conveys loving parental feelings and demonstrates keen insight into a child's emotional needs.

According to Jackie Leo, editor-in-chief of Family Circle, "When a parent takes a moment to write to a child, he or she can express sentiments that are often left unsaid in today's fast-paced world. These notes can be wonderfully reassuring and can become cherished mementoes for a child."

"At American Greetings, the very core of our business philosophy is encouraging 'me to you' communication and this contest is a way of honoring parents who do so with their kids," adds Kathy Bernetich, Director of conventional Concept Development at American Greetings.

Contest Rules

The contest is open to parents of the U.S. and Canada, 18 years of age and older, with a child between the ages of four and twelve years old as of October 1, 1990. No purchase is necessary. The contest is void in Quebec and wherever restricted or prohibited by law. Entrants must hand print or type their name, address, and phone number on a plain piece of paper.

On the back of this piece of paper, the parent must write a message, in 25-words or fewer, to complete the following note: "You're so special to me because . . . " A recent photograph of parent and child taken within the last three months, must also be included.

All entries must be sent to Kid Zone "Write A Special Note" Contest, P.O. Box 4820, Blair, NE, 68009, and received by November 28, 1990. All entries are bound by complete official rules. All judging will be based on originality, appropriateness to subject matter and sincerity.

Additional information can be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped #10 envelope to: American Greetings/Family Circle Kid Zone "Write A Special Note" Contest Rules, P.O. Box 4410, Blair, NE 68009 or wherever American Greetings products are sold. Requests for rules must be received by November 7, 1990.

Four parent/child finalists, chosen by independent representatives of American Greetings and Family Circle, will be flown to New York City for an expense-paid trip from January 10-15, 1991. The finalists will enjoy a Broadway show and receive $500 in cash. While in New York, one parent/child finalist will be named the grand prize winner.

Make It With Pasta

Pasta is a general term covering all the Italian thin-dough products, such as macaroni, spaghetti, and noodles. Some are ususally made fresh, such as pot pie and ravioli; most are dried, and it is estimated that more than 150 shapes are made commercially. They taste different because they look different, but the dough is the same for all.

Pasta dough is made by adding water with or without salt to semolina, farina, flour, or a mixture of these. The quality depends almost entirely on the wheat used. Pastas made from durum wheat break with with a clean, sharp edge and keep their shape when cooked. Egg pastas, which include noodles and egg vermicelli, are made of a similar dough with the addition of whole eggs or egg yolks.

Baked or boiled, served with all sorts of sauces or with plain butter, pasta is an integal part of American diets. It cooks quickly and easily; its bland flavor blends well with other foods, and it needs only a green salad to make a well-rounded meal.

Easy and elegant chicken medallions is a smart dish for those who like to entertain.

Apples are the perfect snack food: they're portable, great tasting and good for you with only 81 calories and no cholesterol. Medical research is showing that a diet including lots of apples may help prevent heart disease, osteoporosis, diabetes, stroke, and certain types of cancer.

Apples are rich in dietary fiber, ranking just behind prunes in fiber content. The fiber in apples fills the stomach and causes it to empty more slowly after a meal, further slowing the absorption of glucose into the blood stream.

A recent study concluded that an extra serving of potassium-rich foods such as apples could reduce the risk of stroke by 40 percent.

Here is a recipe from the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board that you are sure to enjoy.

Water
Salt and pepper
4 medium potatoes
1 large carrot
2 medium onions

In large pot filled ¾ full with water, cook cut-up chicken for 40 minutes. Save all broth in pot. Add salt and pepper to taste. Remove chicken. Cool a bit; then bone and cut chicken into small pieces.

Stretch Food Dollars With Beans

Beans belong in today's diet. They are among the lowest-cost sources of protein and contain iron, B vitamins, fiber and very little fat.

Americans rely heavily on meats to plan meals. But beans can be a cost saving and healthy alternative.

Vegetable sources of protein like dry beans, peas, and lentils have an advantage over animal sources of protein because they are very low in fat.

Too much fat in the diet has been linked to health problems like obesity and heart disease. Overall fat consumption has risen 24 percent since the beginning of the century and now approximately 40 percent of our total calories come from fat.

Some people may think that beans are a poorer source of protein than meat. Beans don't have sufficient amounts of the essential amino acids which make up proteins. But combining beans with grains can make their protein value equal to meat.

Creative use of beans not only stretches the food dollar without sacrificing protein, but also opens up a wide range of new eating experiences. Some powerful pairs include split pea soup and cornbread sticks, pickled corn and kidney bean salad, baked beans and steamed brown bread, and navy bean soup with bran muffins.

Canned kidney beans, garbanzo beans, Great Northern beans and other legumes are convenient to use. Preparing dishes using dried beans, however, doesn't require a lot of time or skill and it can be less expensive.

Dried beans must be soaked to replace the water lost in drying. Allow 4 cups of water for each cup of beans. Cover and let the beans soak overnight or bring the water and beans to a boil, cook 2 minutes, cover, remove from heat, and let stand 1 hour.

Most beans require 1-1/2 to 2 hours of gentle boiling to soften. A pressure cooker can cut the cooking time to 3 to 10 minutes. Avoid filling the cooker more than one-third full of beans and water because the beans will expand and foam could clog the vent.

One cup of dried beans equals two cups of cooked beans. Many bean recipes make several servings, so if you're cooking for one or two people, cut the recipe in half or plan to freeze some of the excess.

Chuckwagon Beans

2 lbs. any colored bean soaked, drained and cooked
3 or 4 medium onions, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
¾ cube butter or margarine or ⅓ cup of vegetable oil
2 tbsps. chili powder
½ tsp. cumin
2-⅓ cups tomato sauce
2 tbsp. sugar
¼ cup vinegar
1 tbsp. water
1 tbsp. dry mustard

Saute´ onions and garlic in margarine or oil until clear, not browned; stir in chili powder, mustard and cumin; add tomato sauce, sugar, vinegar and water; add slowly to cooked, drained beans. Cook slowly for 15 minutes, or until flavors are blended.

Kandi's Chilling Tales

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

WAKEFIELD (Lancaster Co.) — Kandi Mullin sneers defiantly and tilts her nose in scorn. Through clenched lips, she threatens harm and warns of danger if you don't watch out.

If you listen to her witch's tales, chills run up and down your spine.

She warns, "The goblins will gets you, if you don't watch out."

Kandi really isn't a vicious witch or even a nasty person. She makes poetry come alive with her expressive recitations. The poem, called Little Orphan Annie by James Whitcomb Riley, has won her much applause. She has won talent contests and been asked to recite it for entertainment at many gatherings.

Her favorite poem is Casey at the Bat by Ernest Thayer. With that poem she won another talent contest. As Kandi recites the five-minute poem, she squints her eyes, stamps her foot, and hangs her head in shame.

Those who listen to Kandi, feel like they are in the crowd watching Casey come to bat. Although the umpire pronounces strike one and strike two, you know Casey's final swing will be a grand slam.

Until...alas, Casey strikes out.

"There is no joy in Mudville. The mighty Casey has struck out."

The pain, the disappointment is just as great as if you've been there cheering for Casey.

So, all you girls and boys who claim you don't like poetry — wait until you hear Kandi recite it. She can make it as exciting as a TV program.

Her talent was uncovered when she enrolled in a 4-H public speaking class several years ago. The first time that she needed to write a speech and recite it, she had no idea what to do.

Kandi said. "I decided to speak about growing strawberries." Growing strawberries is another of her 4-H projects.

Her speech went so well that she won and went on to county competition and then to regional competition.

In this year's competition, she told about "Pleasant Grove — not just another pretty place."

Kandi chose that topic because she loves American history. Pleasant Grove is a small village where her mom and uncle grew up. Kandi researched the area and told her audience about it. They must have loved it because she won again. This year, Kandi will go to state competition.

Kandi's mother believes that Kandi inherited her grandmother's talent for reciting poems.

Although she died before Kandi had a chance to know her, the grandmother was known for her natural ability to insert expression in the right spots, through motions and word emphasis.

She likes 4-H speech classes because she gets helpful criticism such as, "Slow down, you're going too fast."

Sometimes the club does impromptu speeches. Kandy said she does better with planned speeches.

Kandi is a member of the debate club at school where she gets more opportunity to develop speaking skills.

Kandi doesn't only repeat her poems to an audience. She repeats it to herself while timing her runs during hockey practice. According to Kandi, "Casey At The Bat" takes five minutes to recite, the same amount of time her coach makes the team run around the track. "It's a good way to time myself," Kandi said.

Kandi wants to be an American history teacher or an elementary teacher. Her mother is a preschool teacher.

But for now Kandi has plenty to do. In the Rural Youth competition at the Solanco Fair she won a steer named Bullwinkle. She hopes she won't become so attached to it that she won't want to sell it.

Last year she won two pigs during Rural Youth competition at the Solanco Fair.

Kandi said, "I wanted them so badly, but after I got them, I knew it wasn't my thing. I don't feel in control of them."

Fortunately Kandi has a brother Jimmy who tends them for her.

Jimmy is nine. He likes 4-H as much as Kandi does. He is in archery, foods, swine, strawberry, and handyman clubs.

Kandi said, "Four-H is my big summer thing." She'd rather go to 4-H activities than go swimming.

Kandi doesn't need a stage to recite her poems. Wherever she is, she can make a poem come alive.

and Jimmy show off their pumpkins that won second and fourth prizes at the Fair. "All you do is ow the in the garden. You don't need to plant

"Treat" Yourself To Some Time Alone

"Trick or Treat"... the children's calls will be heard throughout our neighborhoods this weekend and next week. What will you get as an autumn treat? May I suggest that you treat yourself to an hour or two of solitude?

Why take time to be alone?

Removing yourself from an everyday routine or from a particularly stressful situation can give you a refreshing perspective. You know, that child that had you pulling your hair out really is quite adorable most of the time. Have you forgotten the pleasure your artwork, garden, walk through the back fields, or morning exercise brings you?

Our society is stressed-- pushed to the limit in many ways. With the federal budget crunch, Middle East Crisis, and unstable economy families are burdened with many questions, feelings of instability, and honest fear. Each year 8 million Americans develop ulcers. Stress in our country's work force costs companies $75-$90 billion per year.

Stress increases a person's adrenalin, blood pressure, breathing and heart rates. It increases the amount of cholesterol released into the blood system. Physicians report that more people suffer from stress-related health problems than from the common cold!

Being alone gives a person time to think, time to rest, time to pamper himself or herself, time to perhaps even heal wounds. For a few moments you are able to focus on your needs, your interests. Writing a letter to a lifetime friend can't be done with children in tow or while rushing to a meeting. This activity and many others is best done in solitude.

Women, considering current statistics, can expect to spend at least some time alone — either being single, divorced, or widowed. Would you know how to deal with that silence? Too often adults, especially parents, neglect personal interests in order to maintain a home and nurture children. Unless those interests are taken off the shelf, polished, and exercised from time to time, they will disappear.

Time alone is perfect for doing just that. It's a brief look at, reminder of personal "loves".

The time away makes you stronger, more capable of facing the challenges of being an employee, parent, spouse, volunteer, or friend. Occasional time alone also makes you less vulnerable to the inevitable stress of living in the '90s.

So how does this "treat" of time alone fit into a person's busy schedule?

Mark the time on your calendar. If others ask you to do something, tell them you have a previously scheduled appointment (with someone very important--yourself!). Don't bump it. Take a "mental health day" off when you're feeling particularly stressed.

Here are some ideas for that "alone time";

Hide out at a library.

Enjoy your own company at a movie, concert, or restaurant.

Treat yourself to a facial, manicure, massage, or sauna.

Take an afternoon to look at old photographs, letters, or diaries.

Cry.

Laugh.

Dig out your children's baby books or your wedding souvenirs.

Work a crossword or jigsaw puzzle.

Rent a comedy video.

Write a letter to a friend.

Read a novel.

Watch the sunset (or sunrise) from a porch swing.

Enjoy a long, slow cup of gourmet coffee or herbal tea.

October is a time for treats. Children will knock on your door with smiles and homemade costumes. Share a hug and a treat with them. But when the festivities subside, treat yourself to some precious time alone.

Singles In Agriculture

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

AIRVILLE (York Co.)— Although rural single people may have wrestled with the problem for years, it was in the mid 1980s that a midwestern farmer brought the sensitive issue to the attention of the agricultural community.

That single -- as in unmarried -- farmer lamented in a letter to the FARM JOURNAL magazine the lack of eligible women in his sparsely-populated part of the country. An overwhelming number of responses to his letter eventually resulted in the formation of a non-profit rural organization, Singles in Agriculture.

"Today the group includes more then 800 members from across the country, although the heaviest concentration is in the Midwest," says Mike Stewart. The Airville dairyman is helping the Singles group with a membership drive in the eastern states. Pennsylvania, he adds, initially had the fifth largest state membership.

"This is not a dating service," emphasizes Stewart.

"Singles in Agriculture is for people active in agriculture, interested in agriculture, or with an ag background," he explains.

Events focus on group activities, planned at inexpensive sites such as 4-H or church campgrounds. Aimed at being affordable, activities include programs like the summer campout, held recently in Kansas, and the upcoming November 15 through 18 Hobo Campout, to be hosted at 4-H camp at Belleville, OH.

Singles in Agriculture moves to the East Coast for its next major summer camping event, planned for July 1991 in southcentral New York state.

Membership is open to interested individuals, age 18 and up, for a fee of $20 annually. For an additional $15, a member may sign up for the membership directory, a listing of names and addresses published quarterly.

For further information, contact Singles in Agriculture, 5297 Illinois Route 73 South, Pearl City, IL 61062, or Michael Stewart, Box 115A, Route 1, Airville, PA 17302.

Brother-Sister Team 'Outstanding 4-H'ers'

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

BIRD IN HAND (Lancaster Co.) — Dubbed a "true 4-H team," Chad and Laura Folker, New Holland, walked home with the Lancaster Co. 4-H Swine Club outstanding member award at a banquet last week.

"They have had their share of victories and championships at roundups, at community fairs, and at the state farm show," said Chet Hughes, Lancaster livestock agent, at the banquet. "But they've always displayed excellent sportsmanship when they're at the opposite end of winning."

Hughes said the brother-sister team's ledership skills "are evident by the offices they've held in the Lancaster 4-H Swine Club as well as the New Holland 4-H Community Club, and their willingness to pitch in and help whenever possible with new members on new projects."

Chad, 16 and Laura, 18 have won about 20 championships in shows over the years. Chad, in 4-H for eight years, and Laura, a 4-H'er for about 10 years, were honored for their enthusiasm, dedication, helpfulness, and leadership skills in 4-H.

Sarah Boyd, 9, Ephrata, was presented with Rookie of the Year honors at the banquet. Sarah will provide tough competition for other members, according to Tony Folker, 4-H leader from New Holland, who spoke at the banquet. Sarah has already won grand champion honors for her swine at the Elizabethtown and Manheim fairs and reserve at the Ephrata and New Holland fairs.

"When I visited the Manheim Fair and went over to see their pigs," said Hughes, "the pig was lying in the pen, and there's Sarah in there with him. Sarah got the pig up for me to show him, so she's really a dedicated person when it comes to showing pigs. She was right there with the pig the whole time."

Rookies of the year are judged on performances in roundup, showmanship, carcass shows, project books, participating in farm shows, enthusiasm, and other factors, according to Hughes.

Chad and Laura Folker, on the right, were honored as outstanding 4-H members at the 4-H swine club banquet in Bird in Hand last week. Chet Hughes, Lancaster livestock agent, left, presented the awards.

Top project book awards went to Cory Pfautz, first place; Travis Donough, second; and Jason Hertzog, third. Special awards went to Roger Floyd, chief clerk at the New Holland Sales Stables.

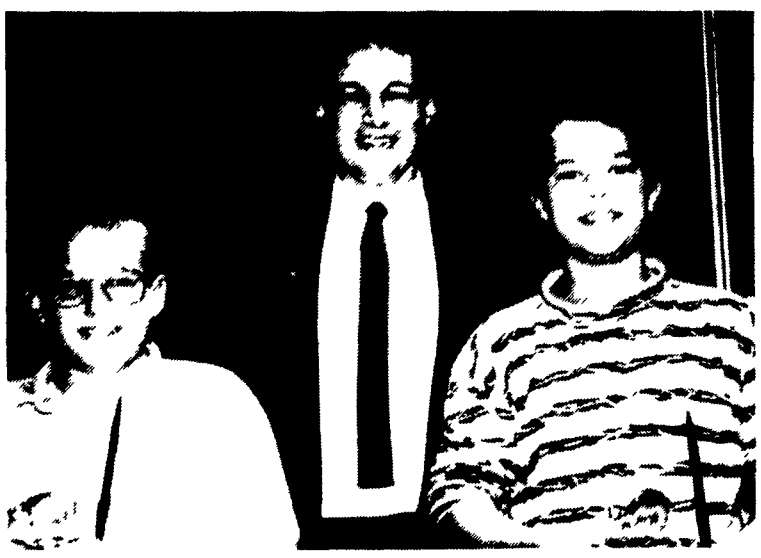
"Roger has done an outstanding job of handling our sale receipts, meeting our pork checkoff dollars, collecting funds due, and getting sale checks out to our exhibitors in a very timely manner," said Hughes.

Groff Meats in Elizabethtown was also honored for help in starting the 4-H carcass shows and for assisting the meat judging team.

This is the third year for the Lancaster County 4-H Swine Club, which has 68 members. The club recently held the fifth show and sale at the Manchim Fairgrounds. They had their second successful carcass show and another succesful food stand. The club is sending 16 members to the Pennsylvania Farm Show next year, said Hughes.

Sarah Boyd, 9, Ephrata, was presented with Rookie of the Year honors for her outstanding year in 4-H at the Lancaster Co. 4-H Swine Club banquet last week.

Roger Floyd, office manager at New Holland Sales Stables, was presented with a special appreciation award at the Lancaster Co. 4-H Swine Club banquet last week.



Travis Donough, 10, Ephrata, left and Cory Pfautz, 12, Manheim, right, won second and first place, respectively, for their Lancaster Co. 4-H Swine Club project books at a banquet last week. Chet Hughes, Lancaster livestock agent, presented the awards.

A city gal, Sherry Ober, had been afraid of cows, but that changed when she and her husband moved on a dairy farm. Now, she loves them. "I'm truely a city gal gone country," she said.

City Girl Goes Country

Sherry Ober

"Well what do you think?" my husband asked, "would you like living on a farm?"

"Who me? A farmer's wife? You've got to be kidding!" I answered. "I don't even know the difference between a cow and a steer, let alone try to milk one! Can you picture me with rolled up coveralls, pitch fork in hand, cleaning out the barn?"

I guess my husband, who was employed by a college, could picture it because he began checking into land prices in the area and in New York.

I found myself getting caught up in the excitement of everyone else's excitement. Before long we began making trips to New York to look over farms we had seen listed in Lancaster Farming. We saw some interesting sights, anything from farms having chickens running freely about in the house, the "Hatfield & McCoy" type, to elaborate places one sees only in dreams.

We visited one farm in northeast New York that we really liked. It had a great deal of potential. The land was beautiful and flat with rich soil, hills in the back of the barn allowing for water to naturally drain into springs which fed into the barn and house, giving plenty of water. The structure of the barn was strong with easy accessibility to the cows and milking equipment. The house was quite large, thirteen rooms to be exact. The yard was fairly big with a circular stone driveway. We were disappointed however, when the price was discussed. The amount the owner wanted was too high for our budget.

Three months later, after having resigned ourselves to the fact of not being able to buy that particular farm, we were contacted by the realtor, telling us that the owner was willing to negotiate on the price.

"Were we still interested?" he wondered.

"Yes, we were still interested."

The owner offered us a deal we couldn't refuse and we agreed to purchase the farm.

We began right away to prioritize our plans. We told our employers we were leaving our jobs in a month, our landlord was contacted, and family and friends were told our definite plans. I couldn't believe this city girl was going "country"!

The moving date was set, and time passed quickly. But the closer the time came to moving, the more doubts I began to have.

"How can I live 300 miles away from family I loved so much and friends that were so close?" I wondered. But what frightened me the most was the reality of leaving a culture I knew so well and moving to a place and situation of which I knew nothing. I might as well have been leaving the U.S. and moving to Bangladesh.

June 18 arrived and we were north-bound. We arrived safe and sound. As we approached the farm I took one look at the large farmhouse that was to be home and thought, "Look at all those windows that will need to be cleaned!"

Because my in-laws moved up with us, I didn't need to get involved with working with the cows. My husband and father-in-law were doing just fine without me. I had a respectful fear for the huge black and white creatures and I didn't allow myself to get too close. I'd walk straight down the middle of the walkway so as not to get too close to their rear ends, especially when they did "their business."

After living on the farm for several months, I began to wonder what I was doing to contribute anything positive to the dairy. I kept the house clean and all those windows but I wanted to feel more a part of the business at hand. So hesitantly I approached my husband: "Gary, would I be able to help with the milking?"

Gary, more knowledgable than I, thought for awhile and decided it would be best to start out small and suggested I start by feeding the calves. They romped and carried on whenever they saw me coming with the feeding bucket. After they were finished eating, they sucked on my hand to satisfy their need to suck. They got to know me really well.

Gary also assigned me to keeping the milkhouse clean. There were lots of gadgets. I had to learn what each one meant and also what chemicals went where. The place reminded me of an advanced technological lab. I remember thinking, "There's no way I'm going to get this down." But I got to the point where I could do things blindfolded if I had to.

About one year after we moved on the farm, the milk company we were with went bankrupt. We lost a great deal of money and went 12 weeks without any income. Consquently, we went into substantial debt. The farm could no longer support two families. My in-laws moved back to Pennsylvania and my husband, three children, and I were left to run 226 acres and manage a herd of 90 cattle.

We were determined to succeed. We had new resolve. We dug once more into farm life with a renewed hope and determination. But horror of all horrors, I had to drive the tractors! After awhile though I got kind of comfortable behind the wheel. Soon I took on the challenge of harvesting. It was a good plan. I would chop the corn, filling the wagons with silage, while Gary would taxi the wagons back to the farm and fill the silo. But Gary soon got tired of me harvesting rocks, so he did the field work and I tended to the herd.

Little did I realize then how close I was to become to each cow, physically by eventually standing with them in their stalls to milk, groom them and help them during their birthing time to even getting "baptized in their business" when I happened to be at the wrong place at the wrong time. Emotionally I was to become close to them to the point that I worried, like a mother would if her daughter was in labor, whenever a cow was due to give birth.

I must have seen hundreds of calves being born during my years there, but one never tires of the beauty of birth. I would help to deliver sometimes when the mother was having difficulty. One time a calf was born and he wasn't breathing. I was determined not to let death win. I picked up the calf by its legs and began plunging it up and down like you would handwashing luandry in a washtub. I thought by doing this it would somehow shake loose any mucous that could be lodged in an airway. I also stuck my hand down his throat to somehow reinforce this thought. It worked! The calf began to gag and kick his legs, and also breathe. I dragged him to his mother and she proceeded to do what I never could. She began to lick him with her rough tongue, (causing the blood to circulate and also to comfort.)

Dairy Promotions Gear Toward More Sophisticated Consumer

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ROBESONIA (Berks Co.) — Consumers are changing. Their wants and needs are different than a decade ago.

To understand how to reach the changing consumer, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program held workshops to teach promoters how to successfully promote the dairy industry.

According to Betsy Dupuis, "Consumerism in the 1990s is the power of personal choice."

The generic American family no longer consists of a mother, father, and children. Households are shrinking in size. There is a greater number of households with fewer members.

By the year 2,000, it is predicted that there will be more people over age 50 than under 18 years. This means unprecedented economic strength by those who want to live longer so they eat healthy foods, smaller meal sizes, and exercise.

"Our job as an industry is to let them know the importance of dairy products in the diet," Dupuis said.

With 56 percent of all women between the ages of 16 and 68 in the workforce, and that percentage expected to rise, there is a rise in demand for convenience food with simplification of meals and recipes.

"Dairy promoters need to hand out simple recipes for promotion. Do not use recipes with more than five or six ingredients," she said.

Studies also show that many teenagers are doing the grocery shopping for their families. They are buying convenience foods because they don't know how to cook.

The focus during the 1990s is on health and fitness. "Lean is in: Fat is out," Dupuis reported.

"Consumers are settling for a three-ounce portion of meat and while this isn't much, it is better than not buying meat at all," said Dupuis.

While there is an emphasis on fresh products, there is an increase in closet dessert eaters. "Consumers will eat a salad so they can splurge on the best dessert in the restaurant.

"The dairy industry has really rich desserts and this is what we need to play up," Dupuis stressed. "Don't be afraid to talk about good desserts at promotions."

Technology is making creative communications possible. Shopping cart videos are being testing in supermarkets across the nation. As a customer wheels a shopping cart around the grocery, an electronic beeper picks up a sales pitch on products as the shopper passes items on the store shelves.

While methods such as these educate the shopper, it is expected that the consumer will deal with communication overload and confusion about conflicting information.

Food tastes are changing. While many ethnic groups settle in the states, they not only continue to cook some of their own traditional dishes but also introduce these foods to their friends and coworkers.

"Our society adapts to the new cultures by including dishes such as Japanese stir fry, Italian, and Mexican dishes in their diet."

Consumers will continue to become more sophisticated, more impatient, more affluent, and more powerful.

Laura Long-Lesher, communications specialist with PDPP, told the promoters how their 15 cents per hundred weight dollars are helping promote products.

"The dairy case is the most profitable part of the grocery store," she said. She recalled that the REAL seal was stressed in the early '80s, but the emphasis has now slacked off. "Tie it in with every promotion," she said.

She urged promoters to be creative by focusing on local needs.

Lesher reported that at a recent restaurant trade show, the dairy stand was the hit of the show. By promoting "Cheers — non-alcoholic drinks, they found consumers are interested in them. "Pregnant women need to drink milk but no alcohol. They love dairy Cheers."

During a pomoter's panel, county chairpersons reported on successful promotions in their counties. Julie Greider from Lancaster County reported that 132 T-shirts for newborn babies were distributed during June dairy month. Lebanon County reported success with their Summer Love Tuesday when kids help turn ice cream at the local library, and ice cream and ice cream scoops were raffled.

Berks County reported that the sundae building at the Kutztown Fair helped revitalize the Fair. The promotion included games such as a REAL tug with whipped cream layered on concrete. Similar to a tractor pull, contestants are pulled through the cream. Prizes were free milk shakes from the milk shake wagon.

Specialty items available for promotion programs were introduced. Some of the items are fortune cookies with dairy fortunes, gigantic toothbrushes, recipes, and Hershey chocolate cows, tins, and a barn box.

Other workshops were led by Deann Hess, Farm Report producer of WGAL-TV, on media relations.

"The REAL tug was a big success at the Kutztown Fair."

WIFE Protests Cuts

OGALIALA, NE — "Wife protests the budget cuts made in the new farm bill, "says Elaine Stuhr, Bradshaw, NE, national president of Women Involved in Farm Economics.

"The industry that provides the most abundant and affordable food and fiber of any country in the world is being treated unfairly in the budget cutting process," says Stuhr. She asks, "What business can survive if they receive less today for their products and efficiency than they did ten years ago?"

"The combination of low commodity prices and increasing production costs are already creating critical conditions for many farmers," adds Stuhr.

Stuhr points out, "The proposed increase in user fees on dairy, sugar, tobacco, peanut and honey products will ultimately be passed on to the consumer. Grazing fees paid by ranchers leasing public land are proposed to increase more than 450 percent."

"These issues will be a high priority of WIFE's National Convention," according to Stuhr. The grassroots organization will meet November 14 to 17, 1990 in Lincoln, Nebraska.

JoAnn Smith, Assistant Secretary of Marketing & Inspection (USDA), will keynote the convention on November 14. Smith served as president of the National Cattlemen Association, was chairman of the board for Federal Reserve Bank, Jacksonville, Florida and served on the board of governors of Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

"Step Two: Sizing Up the Structure" will be held Monday, November 12. Topics covered include assessing structural quality, checking out the electrical, heating and plumbing systems, and testing for radon.

The series concludes Monday, November 19, with "Step Three: Learning about the Purchase Process." Working with a real estate agent, understanding the paperwork, learning about legal aspects and homeowner's insurance will be discussed.

McRib Is Back

DES MONIES, Iowa — McDonald's, the world's largest fast food retailer, has decided to help America's pork producers celebrate National Pork Month for the second year in a row by making the McRib™ sandwich available nationally as a limited-time promotion.

Last fall's six-week promotion resulted in the sale of over 80 million McRib sandwiches. It was estimated that $1.60 per cwt of the market price of hogs during the six weeks of the promotion was attributable to McRib sales. That meant a $46 million return to producers in prices they were paid during the promotion period.

This year's promotion entitled, "McRib Is Back," will again be supported by McDonald's with extensive national advertising. "This is another instance where aggressive use of checkoff dollars in development and marketing is paying off for pork producers," said Mike Wehler, president of the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC).

The initial technology that resulted in development of the McRib sandwich was made possible by producer checkoff funds.

bed at 11 p.m. and working all the hours in between without financial rewards began to take its toll on everyone. We were at our limit physically, emotionally, mentally and financially. Things continued to get worse. Our dream was becoming our nightmare. Workloads never ceased. I remember crying, "Oh God, why won't you change things?" I wondered if there was still room in this world today for family farms to survive? Or is there only room for high tech industries to keep in the race? Why all the pressure to conform to government programs that drain the pocketbook?

We loved the farm. We wanted to stay there. But in 1989, facing another crop failure, we realized our dream had come to an end. After 4½ years, we were once again packing and moving — this time back to Pennsylvania.

The saying: "You can take the farmer out of the country, but you can't take the country out of the farmer" applies to us.

My husband and I still love the farm. My husband is a dairy nutritionist and sales representative for Gehman's Feed in Denver. He's thankful for a job that takes him to farms every day.

I work as an administrative secretary for a church organization, but I get homesick for milking cows. I'm a city girl who went country.

Franklin Co. Holds Market Lamb Roundup

CHAMBERSGURG (Franklin Co.) — The Franklin County 4-H Shepherds recently held their tenth annual market lamb roundup. In a departure from the normal market lamb show with fitting, showing and on-foot judging, all 4-H Shepherds' lambs were judged as carcass lambs only.

Lambs were slaughtered by Steely Meats, Fayetteville with carcass judging done by the Penn State Meats Judging Team, headed by Dr. William R. Henning, Penn State extension meat specialist. Student members of the carcass judging team were Steven Jones, St. Thomas; Karen Ravenold, Kutztown; Clair Riddesbirth, Clearfield; and Donnie Shiess, Chambersburg.

The 37 lambs were divided into five weight classes for the initial judging with the top ten lambs being selected afterward. The carcass weights ranged from 70 pounds to 40 pounds.

Scott Sollenberger's lamb, which yielded a 57-pound carcass, was named the grand champion carcass lamb for 1990. The lamb was sold to David Byers of Agri-King, Mercersburg. The carcass evaluation of the grand champion lamb was 0.1" fat thickness, 1 percent kidney fat, low prime leg score, 2.45 square inch loin eye area, 2.0 final yield grade, and high choice quality grade.

The reserve champion lamb was also raised by Scott Sollenberger and had a 52-pound carcass. It was sold to his parents, Dean and Rebecca Sollenberger, St. Thomas. Both of these Suffolk lambs were bred by Thomas Junkin, Willow Hill.

The third place 69-pound Tarhee x Suffolk carcass lamb was raised by Kelby Mowery, Shippensburg and sold to Isaac Horst Orchards, Orrstown. Raised by Kelly Boyd, Chambersburg, the fourth place Targhee x Suffolk lamb yielded a 54-pound carcass and was sold to Grove Technical Training Center, Blue Ridge Summit.

In addition, the following also purchased lambs: Jackie Melani, William Dohrmann, Sunset Auto Sales, County Market, Agway Suburban Store, Oki's International Restaurant, Vernon and Luanne Horse and Miriam Hawbaker, all of Chambersburg. Shippensburg buyers were Thomas Mitros Real Estate, Christina Irot, interstate Ford, Agway, Inc., and J.A. Hargleroad & Co., Inc.

Buyers from other areas were Nevin Baird, Carlisle; Williamson Painting and Decorating, Dry Run; Alan Williamson, Kensington, Md.; Donald B. Cook, Spring Run; and Linad Peppernick, Willow Hill.

The following area businesses donated funds to the 4-H Shepherds for the purchase of lamb for promotional uses: Chambersburg Trust Co., Lady Roxanne Beauty Salon, State Farm Ins. - Fred Bolton, Tip Top Cleaners, and York Farm Credit, all of Chambersburg.

Shippensburg business donations were from the Dauphin Deposit Trust Co. and White Oak Mills.

Working With Dried Flowers will be presented by B.J. Woodrig, of Milan. She will talk about growing flowers, and how-to's of drying them, and demonstrate how to make a table arrangement and wreath. Additional samples of her work will be displayed.

On the lighter side, Wes Skillings, of Wyalusing, will entertain with some humorous stories.

Exhibits on display will include a wardrobe of clothing that has been altered or custom made to meet the needs of persons who have physical limitations. There will also be displays on household hazardous waste and of products made from recycled materials. Information will be available to take home on recycling and waste management.

Cost to attend the Homemakers' Day program is $7 per person. For more information call, (717) 265-2896.

How To Write A Will

COLLEGE PARK, MD — Most of us don't like to dwell on our own mortality, which may be why 7 out of 10 Americans die without leaving a will. But for the sake of spouses, children and other dependents, we should take time to plan for the distribution of our estate.

"Anybody who has property and wants it left to a specific individual needs to have a will," says Dr. Mary J. Stephenson, a family resource management specialist with the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service (MCES). "If you don't, your property may be distributed differently than you would like."

Even more important, she adds, is the issue of guardianship of children. Parents with children who are minors — under 18 — need a will to name a guardian to rear the children if both parents die.

If you die without a will, state laws determine what happens to your property. In Maryland, if no children are involved, the surviving spouse may or may not receive the entire estate. If survivors include children under 18, the estate is divided equally between them and the spouse. If the surviving children are adults, the surviving spouse gets $15,000 in addition to 50 percent of the estate, and the children get the remainder.

If there is no spouse or surviving children, state laws provide for distribution of the estate to other relatives. And if there are no living relatives, the estate is turned over to the county Board of Education.

Before meeting with an attorney to write a will, says Stephenson, you should:

* Choose someone to be your personal representative and handle your estate.

* Select an alternate in case something happens to your personal representative.

* Identify your beneficiaries and determine what property you want them to receive. (Stephenson recommends distributing your property as percentages of the whole rather than specific dollar amounts.)

* Decide how and when you want your property distributed. For example, you may want your property placed in a trust rather than distributed immediately upon your death.

* List all your property (include its value and how it is owned).

* Prepare a balance sheet for the attorney that states your current financial situation.

* Prepare a rough draft to review and discuss with trusted friends and family members.

Once you've completed these steps, you can have your attorney draw up a final will and execute it. Send the original to the Register of Wills office in the county where you live, and keep an unsigned copy in a safe-deposit box. You may also want to keep another copy at home.

"Be sure to let your attorney, your personal representative and affected individuals know where it is," Stephenson advises.

It's important to periodically review and update your will, especially now.

"Estate laws have changed dramatically in the last decade," Stephenson explains. "As a result, many wills are outdated."

She recommends writing up a new will or adding a codicil to the original. (A codicil is a legal statement that modifies a will.)

You can learn more about preparing a will from MCES's Fact Sheet 382: Writing Wills in Maryland. Written by Stephenson and reviewed by the Maryland State Bar Association, this publication is available free through local offices of the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, (301) 454-3601.

Chambersburg Teen Captures National Pony Awards

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Rodney Garling, 17, a senior at Chambersburg Senior High School and his 7-year-old palomino Pony of Americas, Bonanza's Gold, were recently awarded a Silver Royal trophy saddle for winning the hi-point pony-rider award at the 32nd Annual Pony of Americas International Breed Show in Des Moines, Iowa.

Registered Pony of Americas ponies are Appaloosa-type ponies that measure up to 14 hands tall. The breed offers classes for youth up to 18 years.

At the International POA Show, Rodney and his pony competed in 30 different classes to demonstrate the versatility of the pony and rider. Bonanza's Gold is one of those rare ponies, that has the temperament and athletic ability to excel in all types of classes. Most equines specialize in one area, such as western, English, or games. With more than 3,500 entries competing during the week-long competition, winning a trophy saddle at the largest POA show was quite an honor. Unlike other breed competitions, the Pony of Americas requires one youth rider to compete on the pony in all classes in order to win this national award.

The most demanding but exciting classes of the show were the jumping, reining, trail, and 12 game classes. The driving class was the most dangerous class of the show because a storm broke during the class. One of the other competitor's pony became frightened by the rain and trash which blew in the covered arena, striking the ponies. The pony ran out of control until spectators jumped into the arena and caught the pony.

Rodney's least enjoyable class was the Showmanship class. While attired in a heavy western suit, it was hard to maneuver a pony to stand perfectly and hold that position for 45 minutes during the judging in 95 degree humid heat. But winning that International Showmanship trophy made suffering the heat and tension worth the discomfort.

Indian Costume classes were favorites of the spectators. "My family made the hand-crafted items on my costume," Rodney said. "My mom helped me to research and create a Woodland Indian costume. We also created a concise but detailed story about my costume, which I give orally each time I compete. At large shows, we paint my pony with water base paint. In my story, I explain the various symbols painted on my pony. Doing research for my Indian costume helped me learn more about our Native Americans and helped me appreciate their culture."

Rodney Garling, riding Bonanza's Gold, is pictured in one of the many jump classes they competed in this past summer. Although this was their first year to compete in jumping classes, they won regional and national awards in Hunter Over Fences, Open Jumping, and Equitation Over Fences at the POA International Show, three Regional Shows, and at the POA East Coast Championships.

Competing in a week-long show of this caliber was very tiring in the terrible heat. There was so much work to be done. All tack and clothing had to be spotless, no matter how much heat, mud, or dust was in the show rings. The Garling family worked together so that when two-minute tack changes were called, Rodney and the two ponies he showed, a 4-year-old junior pony and Bonanaza's Gold, were ready.

Rodney's father, Ronald Garling, said, "We are really proud of Rodney. He has done all the training of his ponies, unlike a lot of kids who have professional trainers. He works weekends and over the summer to help pay his expenses. At the shows, he rides two ponies, which means he rarely has time to sit down or grab a bite to eat. He competes in more classes than any other rider competing against him and is a good sport when things don't go well. We're really happy he is doing so well, proving his best pony is a real champion by winning in all the large POA breed shows, under a different judge each day."

In addition to competing at the International POA Show, Rodney and Bonanza's Gold maintained their winning form at other shows. At the Northeast Regional show in Cobleskill, N.Y., Rodney was crowned northeast Regional King and received a wrist watch. At the Midwest Regional in Rantoul, Ill., Rodney and his pony won hi-point pony-rider and won a director's chair. At the East Coast Championships in Lexington, Va., they won championship medals in open jumping, equitation over fences, pleasure driving, and Indian costume. This was their first year to compete in jumping classes.

After competing and winning the title of Pennsylvania's POA King, Rodney on Bonanza's Gold, proudly carried the Pennsylvnaia State Flag in the Grand Entry of POA shows.

Rodney joined the Franklin Co. 4-H Rabbit and Horse clubs when he was 6 years old. He has been a member of 4-H for 11 years and has won several State 4-H championships with project ponies he raised and trained from foals. Rodney has also won blue ribboons with 4-H projects in rabbit production, horse production, leadership, dog and he has raised two Seeing Eye puppies which are now working with blind people.

Rodney is active in the Chambersburg High School choir, the Trojan Marching Band, and is on the honor roll. Although Rodney enjoys showing ponies, he also enjoys using his ponies out of the show ring. He feels one reason his ponies have not become "ring sour", that means rebellious to show classes, is because he often invites friends to trail ride with him, uses his ponies to give pony rides for non-profit organizations, and drives his ponies in parades.

One disadvantage of competing in so many different states is that Rodney is unable to compete in the 4-H District and State Horse Shows He misses the 4-H competition and hopes to compete next year, his final year of showing as a youth rider.

28 Foot Length Shown 1 - 28 Ft. & 2 - 32 Ft. Models Now In Stock

Optional deck over the neck is 7½ 'x8'

The FLIP-UP BEAVERTAIL raises and lowers in seconds -- slide out ramps are stored under the beavertail. The Hillsboro Flatbed features a full 96" deck width which is more value than the competition.

The Hillsboro Flatbed is available in two styles, the 20' and 24' trailer with standard neck, and the 28', 30' and 32' trailer with heavy duty neck.

VERSATILE — RUGGED — RELIABLE and REASONABLY PRICED!

The Hillsboro Flatbed Trailer with flip-up beavertail can be the one trailer that means lower cost for you. Here's why!!

VERSATILITY! That's what makes a Hillsboro trailer such a good investment. With the beavertail down it's an excellent trailer for moving wheeled equipment. Flip the beavertail up and it adds an extra four feet of deck space for hauling hay and other bulky loads.

HERE'S WHAT HILLSBORO QUALITY MEANS - All Hillsboro trailers are manufactured in precise jigs and fixtures which assures excellent alignment of axles, a better pulling trailer, a level and square trailer.

HILLSBORO WORKMANSHIP INCLUDES-Exceptional weld quality, material that is chemically cleaned, two coats of high quality paint, material strength engineered into the best flatbed value.

INTRODUCING THE REDESIGNED

WRANGLER

OUR BEST VALUE TRAILER JUST GOT BETTER.

The new Wrangler. More aerodynamic. Better looking. And the strongest Wrangler yet. With top-quality components and rugged construction, this Wrangler is the best trailer value you can find.

- LIGHTWEIGHT- Eby stock trailers are 25-35% lighter than comparable steel trailers. Less weight means better fuel mileage or increased payload.
- MAINTENANCE- Eby aluminum trailers won't rust. Welding and painting can cost you dollars in down time and repairs.
- DURABILITY- Eby trailers are built tough. Quality components and 6061 alloy aluminum provide the ruggedness required in a livestock trailer.

Pa. FFA Members Receive National Recognition

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — National recognition will be given to Pennsylvania FFA members at the world's largest annual youth convention, the 63rd National FFA Convention held Nov. 8-10 in Kansas City, Mo. Nearly 23,000 FFA members, guests, and supporters are expected to attend.

The convention will feature eight sessions with addresses by top speakers from the fields of education, government, and agriculture. Among those scheduled to appear are U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter; Joe Clark, subject of the movie "Lean on Me"; Rich DeVos, Amway Corporation president; Fred McClure, special assistant to President George Bush; and motivational speakers Zig Ziglar and W. Mitchell. In addition, convention participants will have opportunities to attend leadership workshops, tour Kansas City manufacturing and agribusiness sites, take in American Royal Livestock Show performances, and meet with their peers from all 50 states, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

Other highlights will include the selection of top FFA members in 29 agricultural proficiency award areas, 10 national career skill competitions, and both prepared and extemporaneous public speaking contests. At the Friday afternoon session, the American FFA Degree — the highest degree awarded to FFA members — will be presented to 1,056 recipients representing the top two-tenths of one percent of FFA membership. Top chapters in safety, community development, and overall activities will also be recognized. In addition, the 1990-91 national FFA officers will be elected and installed.

The National Agricultural Career Show and the National FFA Alumni Convention are held in conjunction with the FFA convention.

FFA is a national organization of 387,042 members in 7,634 local chapters preparing for careers in the science, business, and technology of agriculture. Local, state, and national activities and award programs provide opportunities for students to apply knowledge and skills acquired through agricultural education. FFA members strive to develop agricultural leadership, cooperation, and citizenship.

The chart features the participants from Pennsylvania, listed by hometowns of the 1990 National FFA Convention.

Lamar Gockley, Mohnton, has been nominated and is expected to receive the highest degree awarded by the National FFA Organization, the American FFA Degree.

This honor is based on outstanding achievements in agricultural production, processing and service programs and on demonstrated leadership abilities. Gockley will be one of the 1,056 members receiving the award at the 63rd National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Mo., November 8-10.

Only one in 400 of the 386,832 FFA members have advanced through Chapter and State FFA Degrees to earn this national award. Gockley, the son of Glenn and Margaret Gockley, is currently dairy farming in partnership with his father in Mohnton. He is a member of the Grassland chapter and his agricultural education instructor/FFA advisor is Mr. Clifford J. Pay.

Each degree winner receives a gold American FFA key and a partially-paid trip to the national FFA convention in Kansas City. The American FFA Degree recognition program is sponsored by the Agricultural Division of American Cyanamid Company of Wayne, N.J.; Case IH of Racine, Wis.; the Farm Credit System of Washington, D.C.; Na-Churs Plant Food Company of Marion, Ohio; Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. of Des Moines, Iowa and Pirelli Armstrong Tire Corporation of New Haven, Conn. as a special project of the National FFA Foundation.

More than 20,000 FFA members are expected to attend the 63rd National FFA Convention, which is the largest annual youth convention in the nation. Those attending will see the American FFA Degrees awarded, hear nationally-known speakers and witness the installation of the six new national FFA officers.

A local FFA member will help to decide the future direction of the National FFA organization when the world's largest annual youth convention is held this November. Gregory L. Harnish, 18, Vice President of the PA FFA association will represent the state as an official delegate to the 63rd National FFA Convention Nov. 8-10 in Kansas City, Mo.

Harnish will join 276 state FFA officers who will conduct the business of the National FFA Organization during special sessions of the convention.

Harnish is the son of Robert & Marti Harnish of Manheim and is a member of the Manheim FFA Chapter.

Caressa Crone, Danville, Pa., has been nominated and is expected to receive the highest degree awarded by the National FFA Organization, the American FFA Degree.

This honor is based on outstanding achievements in agricultural production, processing and service programs and on demonstrated leadership abilities. Crone will be one of the 1,056 members receiving the award at the 63rd National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Mo., November 8-10.

Only one in 400 of the 386,832 FFA members has advanced through Chapter and State FFA Degrees to earn this national award. Crone, the daughter of Susan Cope, is currently working for the USDA as a Program Assistant in the Northumberland County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. She is a member of the Danville chapter and her agricultural education instructor/FFA advisor is Paul Heasley.

Sheep Industry Protests Grazing Hike

DENVER, Colo. — A proposed hike in grazing fees drew strong opposition from the sheep and cattle industries this week, but despite strong bipartisan opposition was passed by the House of Representatives by a 251-155 vote.

The amendment by Reps. Mike Synar (D-OK) and Buddy Darden (D-GA) was made to the House Interior Appropriations Committee and changed the grazing fee formula and raised fees to $8.70 or higher over the next four years.

"Sheep producers operating on federal lands can't afford this kind of an increase," said Wyoming rancher Jim Magagna, vice president of the American Sheep Industry Association and past president of the Public Lands Council.

Magagna said sheep producers are working through the Public Lands Council to stop any fee increase by keeping a similar amendment from being added to the Senate Interior Appropriations Bill. Efforts are also aimed at stripping the Synar amendment out of a final appropriations bill when it goes into the conference process.

"The acceptance of grazing fees of $8.70/AUM by House conferees tells me there is a real distortion of the facts about grazing livestock on public lands," Magagna said. "Grazing on public lands carries a high price tag beyond these fees. This proposed increase would virtually eliminate grazing and the benefits to wildlife that go along with it."

Autumn Poisons For Ruminants

There are a number of plants containing hydrocyanide compounds which can cause cyanide poisoning in ruminants. Common forage crops containing these compounds include sorghums and sudangrasses. Leaves of wild cherry trees found in fence-rows of pastures can also be poisonous.

Fall is the time when leaves from these plants are most deadly. Environmental conditions such as drought, wilting, and frost increase concentrations of hydrocyanide compounds in the leaves and make them more toxic.

When the leaves are eaten, the toxin is activated by the microorganisms in the rumen. Because of differences between their enzyme systems, cattle are more susceptible to poisoning than sheep. Symptoms such as weakness, trembling, and difficult breathing can occur within ten to fifteen minutes. Convulsions, coma, and death generally occur within an hour.

Corn Production Practices Survey

In late June, Jayson Harper, Penn State ag economist, sent a survey to county extension agents to gain insights into the status of certain corn production practices in Pennsylvania. The survey was sent to all counties which had 5,000 or more acres of corn planted in 1988. A total of 56 surveys were mailed (out of 67 counties) and 46 (82 percent) were returned. Of the 1,480,000 acres of corn planted in 1988, responses were received from counties representing 1,273,600 acres (86 percent).

The following is a preliminary summary of selected portions of the survey:

Rotations: 17.1% of Pennsylvania corn acreage is in continuous corn; 10.8% of corn acreage is in a corn/soybean rotation; 33.5% of corn acreage is in a corn/hay rotation; 25.8% of corn acreage is in a corn/small grains/hay rotation; 12.8% of corn acreage is in other (unspecified) rotations.

Manure Application: 66.5% of corn acreage in Pennsylvania receives manure; 60.5% of the manure is from dairy cattle, with the remainder split fairly evenly among poultry, hots and beef cattle.

Nitrogen Fertilizer Timing 41.2% of nitrogen fertilizer is put down preplant; 25.1% is applied at planting; 33.7% is applied at sidedressing.

Weed Management Cultivation: 81.4% of corn acres in Pennsylvania receive no cultivation; 13.1% receive one cultivation; 2.8% receive two or more cultivations.

Include Marketing In Farm Business Decision

In the September/October issue of "Farm Economics," a Penn State College of Agriculture newsletter, Tom Brewer, ag economist, discussed ways to enhance the marketing of farm products. The following is a brief summary of his suggestions:

• Produce premium-eligible, high-quality products.

• Time sales to better coincide with seasonally high prices.

• Use forward contracts, futures, or options market to lock-in a price.

• Deal directly with the consumer by operating U-pick farms, roadside markets, or milk jugger systems.

• Contract for sale of crops and animals in advance.

• Join marketing cooperatives.

You may request a copy of "Farm Economics" through your county extension office. In Lehigh County, phone (215) 391-9840.

Iraqi Embargo Affects World Agriculture

Higher oil prices resulting from Iraq's invasion of Kuwait willi ncrease the cost of growing, processing, packaging and distributing food. Because of the rapidly changing situation, it's unclear how much and how fast the increases will ripple through food prices.

While food transportation costs probably will rise in coming months, rail costs are partly shielded from short-term movements in fuel prices. Railroads often hold significant inventories of diesel fuel and buy fuel under long-term contracts. For barge transport, this summer's lower freight rates suggest competitive pressures will limit rate increases in the fall.

The United Nations-sponsored general trade embargo will significantly cut Iraq's food supplies. Because imports usually provide more than 75 percent of Iraq's caloric need, its citizens will see very tight food markets in coming months. Last year, about one-fourth of Iraq's agricultural imports came from the United States. Other major suppliers have been Australia, Canada, the European Community, and Turkey.

No spreader built better

The New Holland Model 680 is built to last.
- Strong, corrosion-resistant steel sides.
- Fiberglass floor.
- Lifetime Bonded Protection warranty.

This 287-bushel spreader features oscillating tandem wheels that allow faster ground speeds with less ground compaction. Get fast, smooth unloading at two spreading rates with the standard worm gear drive. No spreader is built better.

Stop and see why this is the best selling spreader in its class.

SPECIAL DISCOUNTS FOR CASH!

Load...unload faster and easier

When you're working the big loads you need the Super Boom advantage — extra reach.
With more forward dump reach you can center load your largest spreader from one side so you get an even load The result: faster loading, fuller loads and easier unloading.
With level bucket lift you load and lift higher...with less spillback. And, with a longer wheelbase there's more stability and safety. So, why get stuck with anything else?
Find out just how good a skid-steer loader can be.

Corn Fodder Baling Takes A Tough Baler, That's Why A Case IH Baler Shoud Be Your Next

A STRAIGHT LINE IS STILL SHORTEST Baler!

Case International Rectangular Balers 8520/8530/ 8545/8550/8580

We Have Models 8520-8530 & 8545 In Stock For Your Tough Baling Needs - Call Or Stop In & See Binkley & Hurst Soon!

Produce tighter, more uniform bales—on schedule.

That's why all five 8500 Series Case IH Rectangular Balers give you center line design Your hay moves in a straight line from the time it's picked up until it leaves the baler as a tight, uniform bale

Center line means there are no corners to turn to get crop into the bale chamber as with conventional balers Nutritious leaves go into the bale, not on the ground And with the baler directly behind the tractor, it's easy to transport through narrow bridges and gates

Case IH Rectangular Balers also give you
- Wide, low-profile pickups collect full heavy windrows with leaf saving gentleness because the crop is not lifted as high to get it into the baler
- Prepacker chamber compresses hay into uniform flakes
- Flake size, density and bale size are more uniform
- High speed, short stroke plunger to pack bales tighter
- Hydraulic density control (optional on 8545, standard on 8550/8580) to regulate chamber pressure for tighter, square-shouldered bales for easier stacking

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

- ★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
- ★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
- ★ Introductory Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry. The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability. Our studies have shown that 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows:

*5 yr. - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 yr. - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645 00 and carries a *2 yr - 100% parts & labor warranty
*Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450.00.
We also have units & parts available to rebuild old style TA's, including ramp & carrier sets
NEW price on ramps & carries - $200 00

AXIAL FLOW...One Step Ahead For

...OPERATION
...ECONOMY
...PERFORMANCE
...VALUE
...COMFORT
...HEADERS

"XPE" AXIAL FLOW COMBINES MEAN EXTRA POWER & ECONOMY...

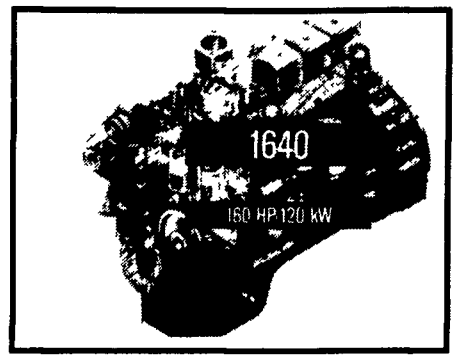
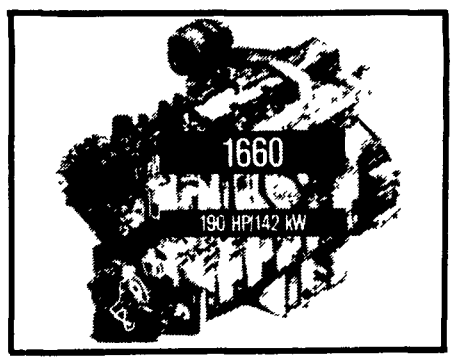
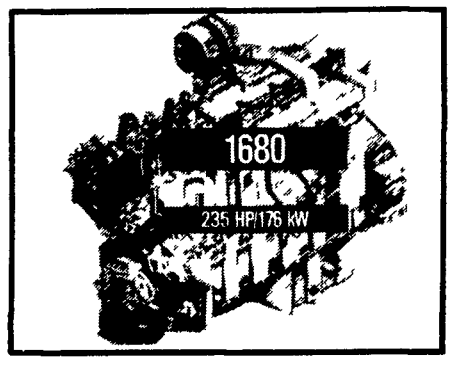
The "XPE" Axial Flow Combines are powered with the CASE-IH diesel engines -- the same engines that have been used in the MAGNUM and FARGO-BUILT 4WD tractor lines for at least the last 5 years. These are field-tested engines designed to produce thousands of hours of use on today's farms at EXTRA savings for fuel and repairs.







These engines were designed from the ground up using the latest in diesel technology. On the models where turbo-charges and aftercoolers are used. They were designed in. Not bolted on as an afterthought. Starting from scratch CASE-IH engineers were able to combine components into integrated systems, resulting in fewer total parts. That means a lot less can go wrong, and if there is a problem, there's a lot less to fix.

A few specific areas of the engines get the most stress, so that's where they put the extra weight and strength. By computer aided stress analysis, engineers found that some areas don't need that much strength, so they built the engines lighter there. That means less weight and better fuel economy.

HOOBER customers tell us that they have noticed as much as a 30 percent reduction in fuel expense when they changed to a CASE-IH "XPE" Axial Flow combine from a conventional combine. Over the useful life of a combine that amounts to a very significant savings.

THE CASE-IH Axial Flow COMBINE IS ECONOMICAL TO OWN AND TO RUN... TRY A DEMO TODAY!!!

Rotary or Conventional Combines

Where can you get straight answers?

"Ask the company that offers both."

Like a lot of combine customers Ron had a frustrating time getting at the facts about rotary versus conventional combines

Ronald Bronski

Go to a dealer that sells only conventional combines' reports Bronski and they'll run down the rotaries Go to rotary only dealers and they laugh at the conventionals Who can you believe?

That's when my wife Molly gave me some real good advice Ask somebody who sells both she said

Well, the only company in North America that sells both is Massey Ferguson So I went to them And boy am I glad I did

Manufacturer's estimated engine horsepower

'First off the M F dealer gave me real solid advice Like where rotaries work best and where conventionals shine

Then he gave me the facts on both lines of M F combines the M F 8400 conventionals and the M F 8570 rotary I'll have to admit I was impressed

I had thought all rotaries were about the same I had no idea that the M F rotary has so many exclusive features like the front feed beater and the direct discharge rotor design that makes it more reliable and more efficient

Then the dealer showed me the M F conventionals They are really well built But what impressed me the most were reports of his customers getting 20 50% better fuel economy as low as 0 5 gallons per acre

So which one did I buy One of each! You see I raise several different crops, so I can make a case for both Besides, my son Mark will pay for the second one doing custom work for the neighbors

Capacity and efficiency for fast harvesting

When it comes to harvesting, you can't beat the heavy-duty performance that's built into the New Holland Model 790 forage harvester. Performance starts at the cutterhead. The 19¹¹/₁₆-inch wide, 12-knife cutterhead delivers a fine uniform chop that's just right for most silage feeding operations. And an electric clutch gives instant response and positive control on the reversing gearbox. The Model 790 is available with either a 540-rpm or a 1000-rpm PTO drive.

Stop in today and trade for the performance leader in harvesters—the "790" from Ford New Holland.

Case International 1660 Axial-Flow Combine

IN STOCK
Case IH 1660 Combine
15 Foot 1020 Flex Head
6RN Model 1063 Cornhead

When it comes to harvesting crops, this big crop-saver can save more grain than other combines in its size class. It has the muscle to "get in and get out" fast to make the most of each day of good harvesting weather. It consistently turns out cleaner grain so you can get top market price. Put a 1660 to work and take advantage of these field-proven features.

- Axial-Flow Design. Uses a single rotor with fewer moving parts and fewer problems than conventional combines using the cylinder-and-concave design. Its more gentle threshing action means less cracked grain and top price for every bushel.
- Human-Engineered Cab. Provides day-long comfort for increased operator productivity.
- 190 hp Turbocharged Diesel and 3-Speed Hydrostatic Transmission. Plenty of power to handle soft soils and hilly terrain.
- 1015 Pickup Header. Available in 11- and 13-foot widths. Hydraulic variable speed drive lets you match crop pickup to ground speed for smooth delivery with minimum shattering.
- 1010 Rigid and 1020 Flexible Cutterbar Direct Cut Headers also available in several widths from 15 to 30 feet depending on model.
- 1000 Series Corn Heads in four to eight row sizes.

MAGNUM 7140

If you'd like to see the difference a MAGNUM tractor makes, try one out in your field. We have models available for demonstration this fall. Just give us a call.

MAGNUM tractors have set new standards for durability, reliability and performance. They still have the best warranty* in the industry —5 years or 5000 Hours. And MAGNUM resale values are higher than ever.

To make MAGNUM tractors even more attractive, we're offering special buyer incentives this fall. Ask us about low-rate financing, waiver-of-financing or cash discounts in lieu of special financing. Offers too good to ignore.

But the real test is in your field. Take a MAGNUM tractor out for a test run. Call us today.

* Excluding tires, which are covered by their own manufacturer's warranties. A $200 deductible applies to each repair after the first year.

PLY-FOIL is a very efficient form of insulation. In application after application it has proven to be extremely effective at controlling heat gain/loss, thus significantly reducing heating and cooling costs. PLY-FOIL Insulation uses an aluminum foil to reflect up to 97% of the radiant heat.

PLY-FOIL BENEFITS

PLY-FOIL products are clean, lightweight, and non-toxic; are unaffected by changes in humidity; do not shrink; and once installed require no maintenance. They do not promote the growth of fungi or bacteria, and provide no nesting support for rodent or insect pests. PLY-FOIL, which has a Class A/Class 1 fire rating, meets the fire and smoke safety requirements of most federal, state and local building codes.

BARN CLEANERS

Built to clean faster... built to last longer!

All-forged Hook-Link® chain... available on Super 300 and Super 500 barn cleaners

Extra thick steel at all wear points

IMPORTANT: Look for the "parting line" on any barn cleaner chain you buy. It shows where excess metal has been trimmed off. It is your assurance that the link was totally forged, not just punched out of a flat steel bar with grain flow in one direction only.
You want a totally-forged link because forging changes the grain on the steel, causing it to curve in unbroken flow lines around the contours of the link, giving the link greater strength to serve you longer.

Conference Highlights Forage Developments

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)— Penn State's 1990 annual Forage Conference will be held Tuesday, Nov. 20 at the Elks Country Club in Boalsburg.

"The conference will explore how forages are going to fit into the farming system during the 1990s," said Dr. Marvin Hall, assistant professor of forage management and conference coordinator. "The event promises to be very informative for forage producers throughout the state."

The conference will feature a range of speakers representing the university, industry and producers. The theme of the morning session is "Why Forages in the 90s?" Keynote speaker Dr. Rick Klemme, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Wisconsin, will discuss "The Dollars and Sense of Forages."

Dr. Larry Muller, professor of dairy and animal science at Penn State, will discuss forages for the dairy cow. Dr. Clair Engle, assoicate professor of dairy and animal science, and Dr. John Comerford, assistant professor of dairy and animal science, will examine the role of forages for beef and sheep. Dr. Cathy Hamlett, assistant professor of agricultural economics, will discuss hay as a cash crop.

The afternoon session will open with an annual report and awards ceremony for the Pennyslvania Forage and Grassland Council, an organization dedicated to improving all phases of forage and grassland agriculture.

The remaining session will explore the theme "What's New That Benefits You?" Dr. William Curran, assistant professor of weed science, will preside over this session, which features eight expperts on new developments in the forage field.

The Elks Country Club is located on Route 322 in Boalsburg, about six miles east of State College.

The conference will begin at 9 a.m. with registration. Presentations will begin at 10 a.m. There is a $15 registration fee, which covers the program and lunch. The fee can be paid at the conference, but participants should make a reservation before Nov. 12 by writing to Forage Conference, 306 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 865-8301.

Plan Now For Farm-City Week

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff today encouraged local organizations to finalize their activity plans for Farm-City Week, November 16-22. This year's theme is "Pennsylvania Farms & Cities.... Working as Partners in Economic Progress."

"The link between our farmers and urban dwellers is vital in continued efforts to expand economic opportunities and accelerate economic progress throughout the state," Secretary Wolff said.

"Without farms, cities would have no food. Without cities and towns, farmers would not have the necessary markets and processing facilities for their products," he said. "The seeds we plant through Farm-City Week and related activities allow everyone to harvest a greater appreciation of the contributions made by rural and urban Pennsylvanians. You can further the bridge of understanding by organizing an event in your own community."

The Pennsylvania Farm-City Program was created to increase public awareness of the contributions made by Pennsylvania's food and fiber industries and the challenges encountered while meeting the world's increasing needs for agricultural products.

The Pennsylvania Farm-City Council encourages local groups to organize events throughout the year to promote rural and urban understanding. Outstanding community efforts to promote the farm-city concept will be recognized during award presentations on Secretary of Agriculture's Night at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in January.

Local activities held last year included job exchanges between farmers and city business people, farm and business tours, food basket distributions, agricultural exhibits at shopping malls, poster contests, local product buying campaigns, farm family and business family awards, and livestock and equipment displays along inter-city streets.

ANIMAL WELFARE — AN ISSUE OF THE 1990s

Andrew G. Yersin
Assistant Professor
Of Poultry Science

October 2 marked the eighth annual observance of World Farm Animals Week. Its purpose was to call attention to "animal abuse and suffering" caused by today's intensive animal agricultural practices.

According to Alex Hershaft, president of Farm Animal Reform Movement (FARM), the victims are cows, pigs, sheep, and poultry who "from birth are caged, crowded, deprived, mutilated, and manhandled on factory farms until the butcher's knife ends their agony."

That statement is upsetting to animal producers and certainly alarming to the public, yet describes an attitude that needs to be addressed by all commodity groups involved with animal production.

As members of the poultry industry, how can we be prepared to address the issue of animal welfare vs. animal rights? First, we need to identify the advocates on both sides of the issue and second, develop internal and external public relation programs that support animal production systems.

Animal welfarists are those who show responsible stewardship for humane animal care and treat animals with respect to avoid discomfort. Proponents of this group include animal producer groups and their members (Animal Industry Foundation, Poultry Federation, dairy farmers, etc.), biomedical research groups (National Association for Biomedical Research, Scientist's Center for Animal Welfare, etc.), university departments (poultry and animal science), and livestock and pet owners.

Animal rightists, on the other hand, exhibit a more philosophical viewpoint and believe that animals have the same innate rights as humans. Or believe that "a rat is a pig, is a dog, is a boy." They believe it is wrong to exploit animals for any reason such as food or clothing production; utilize any animals in medical research; and keep animals as pets. Members of this group include People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA), Animal Rights Kinship (ARK), Animal Liberation Front (ALF), and the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS).

With regard to agricultural practices, the animal rights groups cohesively attempt to block "factory farming," specifically the crating of veal calves, gestation crates for sows, and caged systems for poultry.

Efforts by these groups include intensive and aggressive lobbying for new legislation and regulations regarding these agricultural practices via powerful emotional and financial campaigns. At the local level, these groups may also selectively "attack" one individual company within the industry in an effort to draw criticism and disrupt operations.

The basic tactics used by the animal rights group may include the following:

- Local demonstration describing the "problem" or "injustice," such as methods used in catching and slaughtering birds.
- Extensive media coverage to increase emotional appeal.
- Vandalism to disrupt operation or "expose practices."
- Verbal harassment of employees to promote negative confrontation.

The general overall goal of the animal rights groups is to distort the facts via sensationalism or to "sway the public" who have limited knowledge of animal production and processing systems. As animal producers and processors, we can offset the impact of such practices in the following ways:

- Be in compliance with all established regulations and know what they are.
- Have a "crisis" team or spokesman available to speak with the media and discuss the animal rights groups' "charges."
- If an act of vandalism has occurred, expose it first, and portray the wrongdoing of the animal rights organization.
- Develop local support via education of the general public to husbandry and processing practices.

Garst Seed Acquires Super Crost

COON RAPIDS, Iowa— The Garst Seed Company announced recently that it had signed an agreement to purchase Edwar J. Funk and Sons (Super Crost Seeds) of Kentland, IN. Terms of the sale were not disclosed.

The merger of the two companies will strengthen Garst's position in the seed industry. In joining forces, the combined company will have one of the largest research, production, and distribution networks in the industry, with more than 7,000 sales agents and dealers representing the product lines and an annual research and development budget of $20 million.

This year, Garst and Super Crost together evaluated commercial and experimental corn, soybeans, sorghum, alfalfa, sunflower, and canola varieties in more than ½ -million yield trial plots. The combined companies have the capacity to condition well over three million units of seed annually.

Since emerging as a national company in the mid-eighties, Garst has made a major commitment to research in the US, with 19 research centers across 12 states and Canada; the completion of its $10 million Bioscience research center in Slater, IA; and its network of international testing centers through ICI Seeds.

Between 1985 and 1990, Garst has almost doubled its sales volume. During the same period, Super Crost has doubled the size of its research program, significantly increased its market share, added soybeans to its product mix, and strengthened its distribution network.

"The merger of Super Crost Seeds and Garst will further strengthen Garst's position in the seed industry," said Dr. Ted Crosbie, Garst chief executive officer. "Garst will benefit from Super Crost's fine dealer organization in the southeast, east, and northern Corn Belt, its proprietary breeding programs, quality product line, and highly-focused employees."

Super Crost, founded in 1936 by four sons of Edward J. Funk, employs approximately 200 people full-time who are primarily located at its headquarters in Kentland, IN. It currently markets a full line of seeds, including corn, sorghum, alfalfa, and soybeans.

Super Crost has established a reputation as a quality seed company in the central U.S. Corn Belt and in the southeast. The company has research and testing centers in Carroll, IA; Madison, WI; Bowen, IL; Kentland, IN; Delaware, OH; and Tifton, GA.

Don Funk, president of Super Crost, is optimistic about the future of the combined companies. "Both companies have a strong farmer orientation," said Funk. "Ours is a people company, as is Garst. We have the highest regard for all our employees and customers. We are confident that when the transaction is complted, the new structure of the combined companies can make a significant contribution to the productivity of the American farmer."

"Both companies complement each other in many ways," said Robert A. Woods, president of ICI Americas' Agricultural Products Group and former head of Garst. "Serving the farmer is what this is all about — Garst will now be able to offer our customers more high-quality choices than ever before."

American Cyanamid Begins Pilot Plant Construction

PRINCETON, N.J.— American Cyanamid Company and local officials broke ground recently for construction of a pilot plant for process development at the agricultural research center here on Route 1 and Quakerbridge Road. Cost of the project is expected to exceed $10 million.

Robert Becker, vice president of agricultural research development, said, "Construction of this facility will enable us to continue to develop safe and effective manufacturing technology, but because it will be on site, do it more efficiently."

The new facility, to be situated near the center of the 640-acre laboratory and experimental farm complex, will provide approximately 15,000 square feet of new space for the collection of data on new and modified agricultural processes.

The engineering firm, United Engineers and Constructors of Philadelphia, designed the facility. Construction will be managed by general contractors Midway, Inc., of Avenel, N.J., under the direction of Cyanamd's agricultural research division personnel.

The Cyanamid agricultural research center was established here in 1960. The company conducted an extensive evaluation of the facility and its future needs in 1985, and concluded that "there is not a better place anywhere in which to do agricultural research," according to Dr. James Gramlich, director of the center. He sited the proximity to other research companies and universities plus easy access to global transportation as primary reasons why the company decided to invest in West Windsor Township.

Hoffman Announces New Corn Hybrids

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.)— Hoffman Seeds has introduced nine Funk G Brand hybrids from the CIBA-GEIGY Seed Division, genetically engineered for the growing conditions of the Northeast.

The hybrids are the result of extensive research that began in 1983. Independent research has shown that these hybrids equal or surpass popular competitive varieties in features such as yield, standability, drought tolerance, disease resistance, and drydown.

• 4023 — An 83-day hybrid, 4023 exhibits excellent roots and stalks, with superior stress tolerance. It performs particularly well in high-yield environments. 4023 dries down fast.

• 4160 — This 87-day hybrid has consistently yielded above the mean over a wide range of locations in CIBA-GEIGY trials. 4160 performs equally well in Group 1 and Early Group 2 maturities.

• 4260 — A hybrid with good disease tolerance and plant health, 4260 has consistently topped the mean against competitive hybrids. A 94-day hybrid, it offers strong stalks, rapid dry-down, and big yield potential.

• 4290 — A 96-day hybrid with superior overall plant health, 4290 is an excellent choice for grain or silage. It delivers good disease and stress tolerance.

• 4385 — Strong roots and stalks ensure good standability for this 103-day hybrid. It can flex ear size in response to plant populations and growing conditions to produce big yields.

• 4472 — A leading grain hybrid for central Pennsylvania, 4472 produces a strong, healthy plant with large ears. A 110-day hybrid, it's big on yields with superior grain quality. 4472 has moderate resistance to eyespot, southern corn leaf blight, and Swart's wilt.

• 4481 — This 112-day hybrid is tolerant to most stalk rots and leaf diseases, including gray leaf spot and most corn viruses (MDM). 4481 dries down fast and has good yield potential.

• 4530 — A 113-day hybrid, 4530 shows good disease tolerance to make it adaptable to northeastern agriculture, where humidity and disease pressures take their toll. It consistently delivers big yields on marginal and fertile soils, while performing well in Group 4 areas and in yield environments above 120 Bu/A.

• 4680 — This hybrid handles heat and drought, marginal soils, and disease pressures. Early growth is rapid, with good stalk quality and root strength. This 120-day hybrid also offers excellent stay-green.

For more information on these nine new hybrids, contact Hoffman Seeds, Inc., Landisville, PA 17538, (717) 898-2261.

MOVING HOGS

If we totalled all the marketing losses nationwide, we'd find that over 250 hogs show up dead at packing plants every day. That's more than we could fit on one tractor-trailer load and amounts to about $27,000.

Although most of these deaths are probably avoidable, the industry regards them as acceptable. Who's to blame? I think all of us. Let's take a look at how the science of moving and transporting hogs could make a difference in these losses.

What follows is some common sense as well as a number of recommendations from the "Livestock Trucking Guide" (produced by the Livestock Conservation Institute) and the Midwest Plan Service.

Moving hogs

What does it take to move a hog? As most producers know, the first step is to get behind it. Standing in front of, or even beside a hog, will get you nowhere fast.

Step two is to use a hand hurdle. Most obstacles the hog encounters as he walks down an aisle — corners, sudden open spaces, or doorways — cause him to hesitate. At that moment, he'll always look to the rear (sometimes without completely turning his head). If he see's a hurdle, he'll usually continue in the right direction. Without a hurdle, the only things behind him are two legs and a lot of open space, so he'll probably make a logical decision to return to where he knows it's safe.

Therefore the biggest advantage to using a hurdle is to block the hog's view. That's why even a feed sack will help in a pinch. A practical size for a hand hurdle is 30 inches wide x 24 inches high x ½-inch thick.

The other obvious function of the hurdle is to physically prevent hogs from going the wrong direction. When loading hogs, the hurdle should be more rugged than the one described above. Make a loading hurdle the same width as the alley or chute (minus an inch) and 36 to 42 inches high, using 5/8 inch plywood. When handling the hurdle, always lean the top edge toward you. That prevents the hogs from lifting the hurdle and running underneath.

Step three is to have good facilities. Although many producers favor narrow alleys (24 inches), widths of 36 to 42 inches make them just as functional, if not more so. The idea is to keep hogs moving in the alley. Making the aisle wide enough for hogs to move past one another, and to turn, is an advantage, not a drawback. Also, alleys should have solid sides and gradual corners whenever possible. Open sides serve to distract hogs and blind corners confuse them.

We're learning that the same "wide" concept is useful in the loading chute as well. Some operations now use double chutes with solid sides and open panels in the middle. As the hog goes up one side, he can see another hog on the opposite side that is going the truck at the same time.

A final comment regarding facilities concerns the squeeze pen. A squeeze pen is located between the alley and the loading chute or truck. Hogs can be moved into the squeeze pen a few at a time. Then, with a crowding gate, you can quickly push hogs onto the truck. There's nothing magical about the size of the squeeze pen, but they usually hold 10 to 20 hogs, and a circular design is preferred.

Step four is to simply slow down. Far and away, the obvious weakness most producers exhibit during the moving and load-out process is a lack of patience. The shouting, the swinging, the shocking, the slapping, and the whipping often serve only to excite the hogs. If that seems difficult to believe, try loading the next truck in complete silence. You might be surprised to find that the hogs go on just as quickly. Clearly, when the hogs are moving, nothing needs to be said or done except letting them move.

Now there's the obvious question of what to do when hogs come to a standstill. A slap on the back might work. But a shocker, in my opinion, is just as humane when used properly. A slight touch of electricity will almost always get a hog moving again. The key is to use it when there is only one way to go — forward. Therefore, use the shocker or slap the hog that's in the front of the pack and already pointed in the right direction.

How do you turn a hog around? By using his head. And you have the most leverage at his snout, so push as close to his snout as you can, either by hand or with a hurdle. As a matter of fact, you can exert an incredible amount of control on a hog (or a sow) by grabbing the lower jaw.

Trucking hogs

Two important things to worry about when trucking hogs are weather and space.

Weather. Hot weather and high humidity make for a deadly combination. Any time temperature exceeds 60 degrees, use wet sand for bedding. Keep the sides and front of the truck as open as possible. If the temperature exceeds 80 degrees, wet the hogs down before or immediately after loading. If you have to sit and wait in hot weather before unloading, making a provision to wet the hogs down may also prevent a death. The Livestock Conservation Institute has calculated an index based on temperature and relative humidity:

LIVESTOCK WEATHER SAFETY INDEX

| Temperature | Relative Humidity | Index |
|---|---|---|
| 80 | 80 | Alert |
| 80 | 90 | Danger |
| 85 | 45 | Alert |
| 85 | 65 | Danger |
| 85 | 95 | Emergency |
| 90 | 40 | Danger |
| 90 | 75 | Emergency |
| 95 | 45 | Emergency |

————-(Adapted from LCI Livestock Trucking Guide)

Any time the index is in the alert range, load 10 percent fewer hogs on the truck. When the index is in the danger range, load 20 percent fewer hogs and haul at night. If the index is in the emergency zone, postpone shipments until weather moderates.

Cold weather can also kill hogs. However, the dangers are easier to prevent than in hot weather. Protect hogs from wind and rain (especially freezing rain). Use straw bedding when temperatures drop below 60 degrees. Note that when the outside temperature is 40 degrees and a truck is traveling at 50 mph, the hogs on the outside of the truck are exposed to a wind chill of eight degrees.

Space. A rule of thumb is to provide roughly 4.25 square feet of space on the truck for each 250-pound hog. When The Weather Safety index (see table above) is in the alert zone, increase space to 4.75 square feet. If the index is in the danger zone, increase space to

Cyanamid Sponsors Biotech Workshop

PRINCETON, N.J. — High school agriculture teachers from the Northeast recently attended a biotechnology workshop sponsored by American Cyanamid Company's agricultural research division.

The purpose of the workshop organized through the National Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association, was to give teachers an opportunity to see, first-hand, how biotechnology currently affects and will continue to affect agricultural education and how the new science will influence what they teach in their classrooms.

After demonstrations by Cyanamid research scientists, the participants tested their skills in a hands-on session. The workshop included topics such as herbicide resistance and molecular modeling with computers. Also, the teachers gained valuable experience by conducting practical experiments in cloning genes and plant tissue culture.

Pork Prose

5.25 square feet. Keep in mind that these estimates are for large trucks. For pickup trucks and small livestock trailers, the space will have to be increased somewhat. Always use partitions in the truck to keep hogs from piling up.

Feeding. Hogs with full stomachs are more likely to die during transport. If hogs are to be slaughtered the same day as shipment, withhold feed for 12 hours before loading. This helps reduce death losses and will also reduce the incidence of PSE (pale, soft and exudative) pork. If hogs are to be slaughtered the next day, feed only lightly prior to trucking.

Stress

Porcine Stress Syndrome (PSS) is the leading cause of deaths during transport. Hogs suffering from PSS will show labored breathing, may have tremors, and often have red or purple blotches on the skin. Body temperature during stress increases more than normal which leads to heart failure on hot days. Lying down is a clear sign that the hog is in trouble. Get the hog away from the loading area, and leave it alone or wet the ground around him.

Summary

Death losses during transport are too high — amounting to more than $8 million per year. But it doesn't take a lot of imagination to figure out why we load as many hogs on a truck as we do. It's cheaper.

Even with a zero death rate that might be associated with providing more space on the truck, the hogs that we save would not be enough to pay for the increased transportation costs of hauling fewer hogs on a load. So it becomes a moral issue. Is it right to overload trucks and save $.25 per head in the process, while the overcrowding contributes to the deaths of 80,000 hogs each year?

Farm Century Nominations Needed

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County Extension Director Jay Irwin has announced that applications for Lancaster County Century Farm nominations are being accepted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

"To qualify as a Century Farm, the farm must have been owned by the same family for 100 consecutive years," said Irwin. "A family member must currently live on the farm, and the farm must consist of at least 10 acres of the original holding or gross over $1,000 annually from the sale of farm products."

Lancaster County currently has 109 registered Century Farms.

Century Farm information and applications may be obtained from the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room 1 Lancaster, PA 17601.

Irwin said that Century Farm nominees whose applications are processed prior to November 5 will be honored at the Lancaster County Farm-City Ag-Chamber Banquet on November 20.

"Farming is a big investment...

Time is valuable. An equipment breakdown in the field, delayed supplies, or sudden weather changes mean lost dollars, without quick reaction. Our GE mobile radio system gives us greater control and coordination over our operation. It's a farmer's friend."

Roger C. Garber
James M. Garber & Sons

With harvest season in full swing, your farm and equipment need to be operating at full potential. That's why more farmers are turning to General Electric Mobile Radio Systems. They provide quick, cost effective communications from home or field. It's like having another "farm hand" to help with the chores.

DeKalb Names Bucher

NEW OXFORD (Adams Co.) — A Bucher Associates flock, located at Mark Widerman's farm, was selected the best poultry flock in North America by DeKalb Poultry Research.

This flock was selected as the best flock from entries representing flocks in Canada, United States, and Mexico. Bucher Associates is owned by Robert Bucher and Jeff Musser.

Widerman, a past president of the Adams County Poultry Association, used his management skills to achieve this best flock performance record based on eggs produced, feed conversion, and liveability.

According to Jeff Musser, Bucher Associates, Lancaster, this 45,270 bird flock produced 240 eggs per hen housed with a feed conversion of 3.11 pounds of feed per dozen of eggs produced. These figures represent 40 weeks of egg production. This is 10 eggs more per hen housed and 0.37 pounds less feed per dozen of eggs produced than the standard for the DeKalb XL bird.

Gov. Casey Proclaims October 'Cooperative Month'

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Gov. Robert P. Casey, has proclaimed October as "Cooperative Enterprise Month."

In doing so, he has urged cooperative associations to continue to reach out to all members, and encourages all citizens to recognize the important role cooperatives play in our economy.

According to Jay V. Rush, president of York Farm Credit, ACA and president of the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives (formerly the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives), the first cooperatives came into existence more than a century ago when farmers organized to market dairy products and purchase supplies more conveniently.

Today, Rush said, cooperatives have grown to include many more areas, including urban, as well as rural people. However, cooperatives continue to be a driving force in rural communities, providing the infastruclture that maintains the social and economic fabric of rural areas.

Pennsylvania, which has the highest percentage of rural population in the United States, benefits greatly from user-owned agricultural and rural cooperatives, according to Rush.

As today's agriculturalists and rural citizens are facing increasing consumer and economic challenges, cooperatives continue to provide an important means for them to work together to strengthen our economy.

The Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives is a statewide organization of the agricultural and rural cooperatives that serve Pennsylvania. Its membership includes marketing, service, and supply cooperatives that serve the rural communities in Pennsylvania. Its mission is to support the membership through educational programs and to provide information about the cooperative way of doing business to cooperative members and potential members, cooperative directors and employees, teens and young adults and support personnel, including extension and agricultural teachers.
